INTRODUCTION

THE primary object of the publishers of the Canadian Trade Index is to provide buyers and sellers at home and abroad with an authoritative directory of the products manufactured in Canada with the names of the firms making them. It includes a complete list of all Canadian manufacturers having more than a local distribution for their products.

When first published in 1900, the Canadian Trade Index included only members of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Incorporated. Since that time, as a result of constructive suggestions from several Ministers of the Crown and members of the Association, the book has been enlarged to meet conditions in both domestic and overseas markets.

Many years ago it was made a national publication, including all manufacturers in Canada. To assist buyers in other countries, overseas representatives of Canadian manufacturers were listed and French and Spanish Sections added. Later, as a result of an arrangement with the Department of Trade and Commerce at Ottawa, the Index was enlarged to include a Special Export Section and a list of producers, shippers and exporters of agricultural produce and allied lines.

Owing to the detailed classification and the numerous advertisements, prospective purchasers are generally in a position to get in direct contact with manufacturers of the goods desired, but where information regarding specialized lines is required the gratuitous service of the Commercial Intelligence Department of the Association is offered. Representatives of overseas firms visiting Canada are also invited to call at the Head Office of the Association where they will be given every possible attention.

The Index is kept up to date by an annual revision, and the past year has been spent in checking and revising names, addresses and classifications. Each manufacturer is sent a revising form on which any changes in firm names or products are reported. Additional information is received from Government departments, mercantile reports, and our ten offices across Canada. Classifications are generally established by consultation with manufacturers and experts in various industries.

The publishers wish to thank all organizations, government departments, and the manufacturers who have so kindly aided by furnishing the information on which the book is based.

CANADA'S ADVANTAGES TO THE MANUFACTURER

CHEAP POWER

Manufacturers wishing to establish plants in Canada have cheap power as one factor in favour. There are others.

Canada has favourable trade treaties with The British Empire countries throughout the world, particularly the mother country, Great Britain. She is the second largest customer of the United States, and buys even more from that country than she sells.

In total trade Canada ranks fifth among the trading nations of the world.

Manufacturers wishing to establish themselves in Canada are assured of a plentiful supply of skilled and intelligent labour, efficient transportation, and a Banking Service second to none.

With branches and agencies throughout the Dominion, Imperial Bank is particularly strong in manufacturing centres and in the northern mining country.

CONVEYER SYSTEMS — Conveying has become a science, for no piece of equipment can be taken down from “off the shelf” with the assurance that it will fit any particular job. For that reason, Mathews has specialized in the design and construction of complete systems — most of them consisting of varied types of conveyers — to meet the handling requirements of the plants in which they are installed.

Some of the units that go to make up a complete system are briefly described here. More detailed descriptions and many special units are shown in the Mathews Catalog “Equipping Industry for Continuous Production,” which will be sent on request.

GRAVITY ROLLER CONVEYERS — Rollers, bearings, frame rails and supports for Mathews Gravity Roller Conveyers are built in a wide variety of sizes and types for loads ranging from 20 to 8000 lbs. per roller. Some are of special construction for use where moisture proof, acid-resistant or high temperature equipment is required.

BELT CONVEYERS — Mathews belt conveyers are made level, inclined, declined or in combinations, in lengths and widths to suit specific requirements, using stitched canvas, solid woven, rubber covered, rubber, duck, steel mat and wire mesh belts. Ball bearing rollers, wooden sliderboard or sheet metal is generally used as a means for supporting the load to be conveyed.

TROLLEY CONVEYERS — Trolley wheels of pressed steel and cast iron; chains of malleable iron and drop forged steel; numerous supports, brackets and hooks make Mathews Trolley Conveyers adaptable to almost any overhead conveying problem.

ELEVATING CONVEYERS — For semi and automatic lifting and lowering of materials, Mathews offers a number of chain elevators that are now being used in many different industries. These are described in detail in the Mathews Catalog, “Equipping Industry for Continuous Production.”

CHAIN CONVEYERS — Both malleable and steel chains are used in Mathews Chain Conveyers, which have a distinct field of application and are adaptable for use where resistance to high temperature, water, abrasion and the ability to convey goods on steep inclines is required. The Pallet Conveyor, with its moving bed of metal or wood pallets, has the widest usage of the conveyers in this group.

SHEET METAL SPIRAL CHUTES — Sheet metal of various gauges, according to the purpose to which the equipment is to be put, is used in Mathews Spiral Chutes. These chutes are built to fit the particular plants where installation is to be made. They are used for fire escapes as well as material handling.

De Laval Oil Purifiers

protect machinery . . . conserve oil . . . improve products

De Laval Oil Purifiers remove by centrifugal force from oil, water and solid impurities which cause the oil to lose its lubricating, insulating or other desired properties. This purification with a De Laval enables the same oil to be used indefinitely—and indefinitely maintained in better condition.

De Laval Centrifugals are available for a wide variety of services including clarification of enamels, varnishes and similar products. In fact wherever impurities are to be removed from a liquid, removal can be more effectively and more economically accomplished with a De Laval.

There are styles and sizes to meet every need. "Uni-Matic", pictured at the left, is a complete oil purification plant, including pumps, heaters, gauges, etc. Write for details.

Speed Reducers

Used wherever High Speed Power is applied to Low Speed Use

Worm gear and helical gear units, in single and multiple reduction, are made in a wide range of sizes. Send for catalogue on either of these types, listing standard sizes, with power capacities and detail specifications. These are high grade, heavy duty gear drives, designed and rated for 24-hour continuous service. Ratios are available up to six thousand to one in simple, efficient, self-contained units.

Integral motorized speed reducers and increasers, built as one self-contained unit, are made in a full range of sizes, in both worm gear and helical gear forms, in single and multiple reduction, to give almost any desired final speed. This construction offers many advantages in freedom of arrangement.

We have extended our line of Double Reduction Worm units to quite large sizes. These have ratios ranging from about 60 up to 6000 to one. A new catalogue covers this line in detail.

The Planetary type of speed reducer with shafts in line is now made for coupled connection, as shown, as well as in the original motorized form. A new catalogue has been issued on each of these lines.

The Compensating
Joint

Silent Chain Drives

The Hamilton-Ramsey silent chain (made in Canada) will operate at higher speeds and run smoother and with less wear than any competing chain because of the compensating rolling cam action in the patented Ramsey joint. 24-hour delivery, in $\frac{3}{8}$ " to $1\frac{1}{2}$ " pitch.

PIPE AS PAGE-HERSEY MAKES IT

The big six in the Page-Hersey Pipe Parade answers every question on "what pipe to use" on any job. Architects, Engineers, Builders, Plumbing and Heating Contractors will find in the Page-Hersey line of pipes, a size and type to meet every requirement and pressure. Men who have worked with Page-Hersey Pipe praise it highly because of its uniformity, ductility and ease of handling. They like its sharp, clean threads, and the ease with which it may be cut, bent or threaded.

● BUTTWELD

The simplest form of pipe construction. Made from the finest tube strips, accurately butted and welded. From 1/8" to 4".

● LAPWELD

Pioneered in Canada by Page-Hersey. Withstands greater strain and pressure. Made in sizes 1" to 12" inclusive.

● WELDLESS

Pipe without welds. A super-pipe recommended where exceptionally high pressure or strains are encountered. In sizes 1/4" to 6".

MADE IN CANADA

● REGULAR STEEL PIPE—Serves all normal conditions. Made to high standards and rigid tests in Page-Hersey Mills, it is the most economical and gives long satisfaction in the many ordinary uses of pipe.

● STEEL-CLAD COPPER PIPE—For domestic hot and cold water lines, paper mill process piping, refrigeration cooling coils. A regular steel pipe protecting an inner copper tube. Standard screwed brass fitting connections.

● COPPER-CONTENT STEEL PIPE—Will last 20% longer than regular steel when continually exposed to atmospheric corrosion or alternate wet and dry. Same as regular steel pipe with .25 copper added during refining.

● GENUINE WROUGHT IRON PIPE—Will last 100% longer than regular steel where active corrosive agents exist. The pitting action is obstructed by slag barriers, which are a normal content of genuine wrought iron.

● WATER, GAS and OIL WELL CASING—Steel casing of various weights and tensile strength, with superfine joints and couplings assures greatest efficiency in bringing from shallow or great depths—water, gas, oil and salt.

● BELL and SPIGOT PIPE FOR WATER LINES—Low cost mild steel pipe for use in overland or buried water lines. Stands vibrations or blasting shocks without cracking. Supplied with BELL and SPIGOT ends for lead joints or plain, processed, or bevelled ends. Long 20' lengths, make less joints.

● FURNISHED IN BLACK OR GALVANIZED

For Sizes 4 1/2" to 12" you need LAPWELD or WELDLESS
(Buttweld is not made larger than 4")

For Sizes 1/8" to 4" BUTTWELD can be used

We Make all Three—Specify Page-Hersey for all sizes.

INDUSTRIAL RUBBER Products

GRIFFITH Industrial Rubber Products are supplied to your specifications—Sponge Rubber Parts—Rubber-on-Metal—Hard and Soft Molded Rubber and combinations.

NEOPRENE—the man-made rubber that is Rubber PLUS. NEOPRENE can be used for special purposes where pure rubber fails to meet the requirements—it has more resistance to the agents that are detrimental to pure rubber. Our Production Department is daily turning out all types of molded and extruded NEOPRENE parts, and NEOPRENE-on-Metal.

Consult us about your rubber problems—ask us about NEOPRENE—the trained chemists in our laboratory can help you—they will tell you if you could be using NEOPRENE to advantage.

Our organization is equipped to give you efficient service on large orders—small orders receive equally careful attention.

With your inquiry please send us all the information you can—samples or blue print—quantity required, etc.

Let DIE CASTINGS

save you money

Here we show only a few of the parts we are making for various Canadian manufacturers. These include automobile ornaments and hardware, plumbing fixtures, padlocks, door stops, hose nozzles, telephone stands, clock cases, candlesticks, and gears and other parts for washing machines. If your product has metal parts now made by the slower and more expensive sand-casting method, it will pay you well to look into the savings and better satisfaction of die casting.

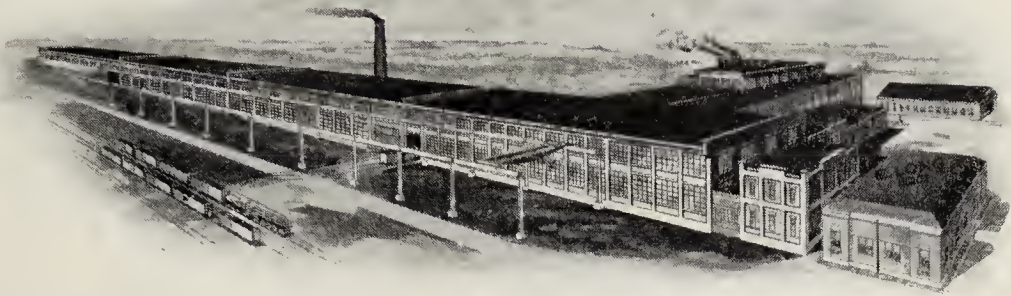

STRENGTH — Our zinc base alloy is from virgin metals of a tested, proven formula. A thermostat holds the casting temperature to an absolute pre-determined degree. Our machines, which are of the latest improved type, always produce a dense, homogeneous casting.

PRECISION — Our dies will assure all dimensions within extremely close limits. The variety of castings now being made in our plant is evidence of our ability to turn out successfully whatever you may require.

FINISH — Requires very little machining or polishing in your factory.

SPECIAL EXPORT SECTION

THE material for this Section which gives in detail the various Government Services at the disposal of Canadian exporters, a statistical analysis of Canadian trade with the world and data in regard to export procedure, costs and financing of overseas shipments, was provided by the Department of Trade and Commerce in Ottawa.

The Department of Trade and Commerce of the Canadian Government, through the Commercial Intelligence Service with Trade Commissioners in the leading countries of the world, the Foreign Tariffs Division, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, the Motion Picture Bureau, the Exhibition Branch, the Publicity Service in Canada and the United Kingdom, is an outstanding factor in the maintenance and extension of our Empire and Foreign trade. Throughout Canada manufacturers shipping abroad are agreed on its value and efficiency in investigating foreign markets, assisting in the establishment of export sales connections, supplying information concerning customs, packing and trade mark regulations, promoting and safeguarding their interests in other countries and advertising Canada and Canadian products. Exporting firms consider its Services an essential complement to their own organizations.

The Canadian Manufacturers Association co-operates very closely with the Commercial Intelligence Service of the Department of Trade and Commerce. It notifies members when Trade Commissioners are visiting Canada, arranges appointments and advises its members of the assistance which this Service provides.

For the benefit of firms contemplating export business and others who may require information on points of procedure from time to time there are included articles on "Five Methods of doing Export Trade", "Financing Foreign Trade", and a list of "Definitions of Technical Abbreviations used in Foreign Trade and Exchange Transactions".

It is hoped that the publication of this Section will prove useful not only to established and potential exporters in Canada but also to importers in other countries who may have occasion to consult it.

THE EDITOR.

A Survey of the Export Field

By W. D. Black,

President, Canadian Manufacturers' Association

ONE of the objects of the manufacturers who founded the Canadian Manufacturers' Association in 1871, was to promote export trade, and those who have served on its committees have given a great deal of thought and time to this important work. Although you are familiar with the subject, I would like to summarize very briefly the principal methods which are being followed by the Association to assist in increasing export trade and particularly exports of manufactured goods.

The Association, through its committees and members, makes a careful study of existing and proposed trade agreements with other countries. It is obvious that trade agreements are important factors in export trade, and, therefore, it is necessary that the Association carefully follow the trend of such legislation and make representations to the Government. A trade agreement should safeguard the home market, which consumes four-fifths of our products, and open up new markets for the surplus. Modern trade agreements are really extensive and detailed contracts, signed after long periods of study and bargaining.

The material on which representations to Governments are made is obtained at meetings of committees, from correspondence with members, and from statistics collected from various sources.

It is also necessary for the Association to keep in touch with the work of associations of manufacturers in other countries, and particularly those in British countries and the United States. This work is divided among the Tariff Committee, the Commercial Intelligence Committee, the Transportation Committee, the Insurance Committee, the Legislation Committee and the Industrial Relations Committee, and also the appropriate committees of the Divisions and Branches. For example, in questions of export trade constant liaison work must be maintained with the Department of Trade and Commerce by our Commercial Intelligence Committee. The Committee supervises the compilation and distribution of Canadian Trade Index, which lists the manufacturers of Canada and the articles which they produce. The Commercial Intelligence Department at Head Office, and the Divisional and Branch Offices throughout Canada answer many enquiries by telephone, telegraph and correspondence, and are interviewed by many members and also non-members. Numerous visitors, not only from Canada, but also from other countries are constantly calling at the Head Office, Divisional and Branch Offices, in search of commercial information which may help them to buy and to sell goods.

More Government Control

One of the important developments of the past few years has been the extraordinary increase of government control and supervision of business. This has applied especially to export trade. In some countries there is no export trade, except that which is controlled directly by the government. In other countries where absolute control is lacking, there has been a considerable increase of supervision under legislation applied through regulations. Anyone engaged in export trade must be familiar with the laws and regulations of the country to which he is sending his goods. Fifty years ago, the Government of Canada, for example, had really very little to do with export trade after trade agreements had been negotiated. That condition has been very materially changed. The negotiation of trade agreements in itself has been greatly extended, and scarcely a year passes when there is no trade agreement under negotiation; in fact, it may be said that the trade agreements of Canada with other countries are in a state of constant revision either through legislation, by modification of the original terms by joint agreement, or by changes in departmental regulations and practices.

The Department of Trade and Commerce, at Ottawa, has become a very large organization. Last year its estimates of expenditure, tabled in the House of Commons, amounted to $8,443,625. Through its Commercial Intelligence service it maintains Canadian Trade Commissioners in the following countries:

Argentina, Australia, Belgium, Brazil, British West Indies, British India, British Malaya, China, Cuba, Egypt, France, Germany, Hong Kong, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Mexico, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Panama, Peru, South Africa, the United Kingdom and the United States. These Commissioners are capable men and give a very good service as I am sure those present will agree. The Department deals with subsidizing steamship services which help to maintain existing markets and to develop new ones. It maintains a department of Publicity and Motion Picture Service.

It has also operated for many years the Canadian Government Exhibition Commission which arranges exhibits of Canadian products abroad. One of its Branches is the Dominion Bureau of Statistics which collects and distributes trade figures.

I have only touched on the principal activities but these are sufficient to show that the Government of Canada and the Department of Trade and Commerce at Ottawa have been and are doing a great deal to help Canadian exporters to find markets in other countries.

Credit to Canadian Exporters

After giving all due credit to the Government and to the Association, it is nevertheless a fact that the development of export trade has been largely the result of the intelligence, initiative, skill and perseverance of individual Canadian exporters. They have travelled extensively, have studied the markets of other countries, designed goods for them, and have entered them successfully. At this moment there are representatives of large numbers of Canadian firms scattered all over the world seeking trade, overcoming difficulties, and steadily making progress. Canadians return, it seems, every few days, from extensive visits, and interest and entertain us with the stories of their successful efforts to pioneer in new trade fields.

What is the result of all this effort and expenditure of time and money? I submit that the sum total of accomplishment has been quite remarkable, and reflects great credit on all those who are responsible for it.

Over a Billion Dollars

During the fiscal year ended March, 1938, the total trade of Canada with all countries was $1,797,667,208, of which $1,047,505,591 represents the value of exports. A country, with a population of only eleven millions, that is exporting over a billion dollars worth of goods annually, has just reason to be proud of its efforts.

I would like to emphasize that Canada is no mere exporter of raw materials. The total volume of Canadian exports for the year ended March, 1937, was classified as follows; raw materials, 35.9 per cent.; partly manufactured products, 36.2 per cent. In other words, about two-thirds of Canada's total exports consist of fully manufactured or partly manufactured products.

Canada now stands fourth among nations of the world in value of exports, being exceeded only by the United States, United Kingdom and Germany.

Excellent as this record has been, we should not be satisfied with it, if satisfaction might result in any lessening of our efforts. We should press forward toward new goals. As a matter of fact, we have no other choice. There is too much involved.

There is invested in manufacturing alone in Canada $3,271,263,531. There are 594,359 people employed in Canadian manufacturing establishments. With their dependents, they represent about one-quarter of the entire population. The value of manufactured goods produced annually is about $3,002,403,814. It is obvious that eleven million people cannot consume all these products. In addition, there are the products of agriculture, the fisheries, the mines and the forests, which are far in excess of domestic requirements and must find markets abroad. An expansion of export trade means more work, less relief, and more stable national financing. We should remember that the aggregate public debts of the Dominion, provinces and municipalities exceed seven billion dollars, and a good part of the payment of principal and interest must be paid out of export trade.

All successful exporters advise those who are contemplating entering the fields to visit the countries where they hope to find markets. They strongly recommend that presidents and general managers should go, as well as sales managers and travellers, and that they should make personal surveys of these countries, visit prospective customers and select agents.

That is the problem. How are we to deal with it? Well, we are dealing with it and making remarkable progress. We should continue and do as much more as may be possible.

Department of Trade and Commerce

The Act of Parliament which in 1887, created the Department of Trade and Commerce and which was brought into effect by an Order-in-Council, dated December 5th, 1892, merely provided that there should be a Department of the Government of Canada to be called the Department of Trade and Commerce. The duties and powers of the Minister were defined to be the execution of laws enacted by the Parliament of Canada relating to such matters connected with trade and commerce generally, as had not been assigned to any other Department of the Government. In the succeeding years a wide range of services have been performed and at present the Acts administered by the Department include The Canada Grain Act; Electricity Inspection Act; Gas Inspection Act; Electricity and Fluid Exportation Act; Electric Units Act; Precious Metals Marking Act; Statistics Act; Water Meters Act, Inspection of; Weights and Measures Inspection Act; Inland Water Freight Rates Act; An Act to place Canadian Coal used in the manufacture of iron or steel on a basis of equality with imported coal.

The various functions of the Department are carried out by the following organizations:—

EXPORT TRADE:

- The Commercial Intelligence Service in Canada and abroad.
- The Foreign Tariffs Division.
- The Trade Routes and Steamship Subsidies Division.

PUBLICITY:

- Publicity Bureau.
- Canadian Government Motion Picture Bureau.
- Exhibition Commission.
- Trade Publicity Services in United Kingdom.

STATISTICS:

- Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

CANADA GRAIN ACT.

INSPECTIONAL SERVICES:

- The Electricity and Gas Inspection Services.
- The Weights and Measures Inspection Service.
- The Precious Metals Marking Act.

BOUNTY PAYMENT SERVICES:

- An Act to place Canadian Coal used in the manufacture of iron or steel on a basis of equality with imported coal.

The Commercial Intelligence Service

The Commercial Intelligence Service is the chief agency of the government assisting export trade. It maintains abroad a staff of 35 Trade Commissioners and 23 Assistant Trade Commissioners, whose function it is to assist Canadian producers and manufacturers in developing export markets. This Service, which operates under the Department of Trade and Commerce, is at the free disposal of Canadian exporters.

When consulted by the Canadian exporter as to market outlets for his product, the Commercial Intelligence Service refers to several sources of information. Previous correspondence and reports from Trade Commissioners are examined. Canadian Export Statistics reveal the quantities, and to what countries the product in question is being shipped; and the import statistics of those countries show the quantities and sources of import. Consequently, the exporter can usually be given a good preliminary idea of the opportunities and difficulties, or competition likely to be met in any country. If there are any possibilities for his product, he is advised to communicate direct with the Trade Commissioner concerned, and to send him catalogues, samples, c.i.f. prices, and other data. The exporter is guided and assisted by the Trade Commissioner in forming a connection, and his interests are carefully watched until he is well established in the market.

Foreign importers, in many cases, approach the Trade Commissioner seeking possible sources of supply in Canada. Their enquiries are forwarded to the Department for publication in the Commercial Intelligence Journal and for circulation to Canadian firms likely to be interested.

The Trade Commissioner is often responsible for discovering and exploring new channels of trade. From his observations he may suspect that his territory may be developed into a market for some Canadian product. Once convinced that the commodity can compete with that offered by other countries, he will endeavour to interest importers in a trial shipment.

The Department at Ottawa publishes the Commercial Intelligence Journal, the subscription rate of which is the nominal one of $1.00 per year. This weekly publication contains the reports of Trade Commissioners pertaining to the market conditions of their territory in general, and the situation with regard to definite commodities in particular. It also contains other information regarding international trade, such as foreign exchange quotations, proposed sailings, tariff changes, trade inquiries, etc.

Assistance that can be given by Canadian Trade Commissioners

Many manufacturers and exporters apparently are not fully advised as to the valuable services that can be rendered by Canadian Trade Commissioners. The following summary is therefore issued with a view to rendering the activities of Canadian Trade Commissioners of greater use to manufacturers and exporters generally.

Commercial Information

1. Up-to-date information is available to manufacturers and exporters through the Commercial Intelligence Journal or by direct correspondence with the Department or any of the Canadian Trade Commissioners as to:—

- (a) The present and prospective demand for their goods.
- (b) Foreign and local competition (with specimens, catalogues and prices).
- (c) Details of best selling methods.
- (d) Reports on foreign buyers, though the Department cannot assume any responsibility in any opinions expressed by Trade Commissioners. They, however, will use their best endeavours to advise exporters as to the standing of such firms.
- (e) Specifications of articles in particular demand.
- (f) Inquiries for goods, and by means of an efficient system for collecting such inquiries the names can be obtained from time to time from the Commercial Intelligence Branch of the Department at Ottawa.

Agents, Buyers, and Distributors

2. Trade Commissioners will also:—

- (a) Recommend to intending exporters the names of responsible parties in a position to act as agents or buyers and distributors.
- (b) Give every possible assistance to such agents, etc., and will introduce them to influential individuals or associations who may be in a position to buy goods from Canada.
- (c) Give confidential information, when so requested, as to the activities of agents appointed by Canadian exporters, or firms to whom sales have been, or are being, made.

3. Trade Commissioners can assist in advising Canadian exporters and manufacturers:—

- (a) As to the best media in which to place advertisements and the form which such advertisements should take, i.e., their adaptation to the special requirements of the community.
- (b) In the display of catalogues, price lists and samples where they can be seen by potential buyers.
- (c) As to the distribution of trade literature and its probable cost.

General

- 4. (a) Trade Commissioners will always be glad to receive visitors from Canada and introduce them to possible buyers or agents, or put them in touch with such experts as legal advisers, interpreters, and shipping and banking representatives.
- (b) The good offices of Trade Commissioners can always be invoked with a view to settling difficulties which may arise between the Canadian exporters and buyers abroad.
- (c) Trade Commissioners will at any time provide such information as may be available as to freight rates customs, port dues, etc., so as to enable Canadian firms to quote prices for delivery overseas. They will be glad also to provide information respecting cost of travel, regulations applicable to commercial travellers, packing and marking of goods, shipping accommodation, storage arrangements, and any other foreign government regulations or conditions which have to be complied with.

Financial Arrangements

5. Particulars can be obtained with regard to:—

- (a) Terms of credit which may be given to foreign buyers.
- (b) Financial houses and banks who will discount bills or give credit.
- (c) Regulations governing the recovery of debts in foreign countries.
- (d) Disposal of goods abroad contracted for but not accepted by foreign buyers.
- (e) Infringement of trade marks or patent rights; and advice on registration.

Information Necessary to the Trade Commissioner

When a Canadian exporter desires the assistance of a Trade Commissioner in marketing his goods abroad, he should with the first letter provide that officer with the following:—

- (a) Catalogues and best export prices c.i.f. port of entry, or failing that, f.o.b. Canadian port. It is quite useless to send prices f.o.b. factory.
- (b) Details regarding process of manufacture if convenient.
- (c) If not too bulky, samples of what the firms have to offer should be forwarded—not necessarily a full range—and a draft or money order sufficient to cover the customs duties and landing charges on the samples.
- (d) Bankers' references.
- (e) The proportion of output which is available for export, time required to ship from receipt of order and the quantity for which orders will be accepted.
- (f) Details of the experience he has had in the territory served by the Trade Commissioner.
- (g) Information regarding previous connections, if any, which he has either with agents or importers. If connections still exist, what, if any, bearing will they have on fresh contacts that may be established through the efforts of the Trade Commissioner.

The Trade Commissioner will thus be in a position to make a survey of his territory, report the opportunities for the lines to be exported, and can then either place the exporter in communication with reliable importers or recommend suitable agents.

Note.—Bentley's Second Phrase Code is used by Canadian Trade Commissioners.

What the Canadian Exporter can do for the Trade Commissioner

The meagre information frequently furnished by Canadian exporters places a serious handicap on the Trade Commissioner in his efforts to market their products.

A general statement, therefore, of the facts about the exporter, his banking references, whether he is already engaged in foreign trade, and for what period and to what extent, are some of the essentials which should be given in the first letter either to the Department or to a Trade Commissioner, particularly the latter. He also wants general data about the commodity which the exporter wishes to sell in that particular market, noting any special advantages pertaining to the line offered, particularly as compared with well-known articles of the same type from other countries. He also wants to know exactly what the manufacturer is himself willing to do to place his goods in the new field: the basis on which sales would be made to the importer or on which goods could be offered for sale by a recognized agent, and the commission that would be paid the latter; what would be required of an importing house or agent in order to obtain the agency for the line; whether the manufacturer would send consignment stock or samples and in what quantity; whether he is prepared to advertise or to co-operate in advertising and to what extent; the facilities possessed by the manufacturer for export shipment, and the kind of supervision that is exercised by him over the packing of goods destined for a distant market.

Prices

Prices should never be quoted from an interior manufacturing point in Canada. Where quotations c.i.f. port of destination are not practicable, they should be given f.o.b. steamer, but it is strongly recommended that prices should be quoted c.i.f. This is a most important point, as the foreign buyer has no definite knowledge of the charges likely to be incurred if quotations are f.o.b. cars at port of shipment and freight rates from some interior point in Canada to the seaboard are unobtainable in foreign countries. He has no means of knowing insurance rates, or the elements that enter into the fixing of the premiums. As a rule he is unable to obtain a quotation of an outward freight rate at an inward port, as the general practice of steamship companies is to refer a request for a freight rate from (say) Montreal to Auckland to the agent in the former city, although an approximate rate may be quoted. The foreign buyer is at a distinct disadvantage unless prices are quoted c.i.f.

Discounts

Discounts should be printed, or typewritten, preferably on a folder or slip accompanying the catalogue. In submitting an illustrated descriptive catalogue to prospective customers the importer should not be placed in the position of having to disclose the exact terms on which the goods are offered to him.

Gross and Net Weight

A knowledge of the gross and net weights per unit quoted is essential. Without these the prospective purchaser is unable to estimate laid down costs.

Summary of Points to be Noted

The fullest possible information in regard to the commodity and complete details on the following points would greatly aid the Trade Commissioners in the intelligent handling of inquiries addressed to them as to the introduction and subsequent marketing of Canadian goods on behalf of exporters:—

1. Cable address, code used, and special code words not in the regular code books.
2. Bankers' references.
3. (a) The basis on which prices are quoted, whether c.i.f. main foreign ports; f.a.s. Canadian ports; or f.o.b. vessel.
- (b) Are prices in Canadian or American funds?
- (c) If prices are c.i.f. and transshipment has to be made, are such items as consular charges and disbursements at port of transshipment and/or unloading for account of buyer?
4. Are quotations firm, or subject to change without notice due to fluctuations in costs of raw material?
5. On what quantity basis are quotations made? Can prices be reduced on quantity orders, and if so how much?
6. Are orders subject to acceptance by exporter?
7. What brand do lines bear, and are these to be sold under this brand in foreign markets?
8. What is the nature of packing? Heavy wooden crates, boxes, new bags or burlap?

9. Are lines stocked and available for immediate shipment? If not, how long after receipt of order will goods go forward?
10. What are your terms? Is there a special discount for cash?
11. What is the gross and net weight in pounds? Measurement in cubic feet?

With the foregoing information on hand, supplemented by recent catalogues and descriptive literature, and, if not too bulky, samples—not necessarily a full range—Trade Commissioners are put in a position to give the best service to Canadian exporters and can either place them in communication with reliable importers or recommend suitable agents.

Trade Commissioners' Tours

The periodical return of Trade Commissioners for official tours of the Dominion is one of the most important factors in effecting practical co-operation between the Canadian exporter and the foreign importer. The Trade Commissioner can during the course of his tour call upon or discuss export problems with practically every firm specially interested in exporting to his territory. The Department endeavours to bring back the Trade Commissioners by a scheme of rotation, giving special consideration to officers in tropical or unhealthy posts, but these visits are always subject to the exigencies of trading conditions, and of the Service generally. Well in advance of the time of arrival in Canada they circularize individual exporters for the purpose of determining what special points they wish to take up and on which full information is secured. In addition to this form of publicity, the department publishes a notice in the Commercial Intelligence Journal inviting firms who may be interested in any particular territory to state whether or not an interview is desired. The names of such firms, together with those with whom the Trade Commissioner has been in communication, form the basis of the itinerary. Firms anxious to interview any Trade Commissioner on tour may do so by communicating with the Director of the service.

Foreign Tariffs Division

Information on the world's customs tariffs and related enactments is disseminated in various ways by the Foreign Tariffs Division of the Department of Trade and Commerce. The Foreign Tariffs Division answers specific enquiries, prepares articles for the Commercial Intelligence Journal, issues leaflets, and circulars. It co-operates with other branches of the government service in assembling data for tariff negotiations between Canada and other countries.

Mainly, the Division gives advice, to those concerned, on customs duties leviable on Canadian goods in export markets. Although application of a country's customs tariffs to imported goods involves official interpretation of the tariff by the authorities of the importing country, it is possible even when definite rates of duty cannot be quoted to give a useful description of existing tariff conditions. As well as study of tariff schedules and published rulings for the purpose of determining classification and rate of duty, the furnishing of information on customs duties calls for investigation of commercial treaties, methods of valuation of goods for duty purposes, anti-dumping legislation, Canadian content required for applying tariff preference, the forms of certificates of origin prescribed, invoicing and consular procedure. In recent years import licensing, quota allotments and related systems of controlling trade, are in some foreign countries of more importance than customs duties. The Division's activities extend to furnishing data on these subjects and any other governmental trade control measures that would affect Canadian exports, such as merchandise marks laws, food standards, regulations on animal and plant pests.

As tariffs and trade regulations are subject to constant change, the collection of dependable reference material for this work is a large task. The chief single source of information on the world's tariff is the International Customs Tariffs Bureau at Brussels, created in 1890, under a convention of many countries and since maintained by the leading commercial countries of the world, including Canada. This Bureau translates and circulates tariff laws. The customs laws and regulations published by the respective governments, reports of Canadian Trade Commissioners abroad, commercial intelligence journals of important commercial countries, miscellaneous official documents and general reference books, are all used.

Subsidized Steamship Services

When the Department came into being, a number of local and foreign steamship services which previously had been subsidized by the Canadian Government and payments made by the Department of Finance, were placed under its jurisdiction.

Ocean subsidies are paid to assist in the maintenance of services which would otherwise be unable to operate, on account of insufficient revenue, and which supply necessary trade connections between Canada and other countries; for the benefit of Canadian exporters, and to enable them, by means of reasonable freight rates and regular sailings, to compete with other countries in foreign markets; and for the transportation of Canadian mails overseas, free of charge to the Post Office Department, and without additional cost to the Government.

Subsidies for local services are paid to assist in the maintenance of coasting services for the purpose of giving regular sailings and adequate facilities for communication between ports and settlements on the mainland, which are in many cases far removed from railways and in some cases have no highway facilities; to give necessary and regular communication to islands isolated from the mainland; for the free transportation of mails without additional cost to the Government in cases where the services performed are found suitable for that purpose by the Post Office Department; and to carry supplies to outlying and otherwise isolated districts.

Canada Grain Act

Under the Canada Grain Act of 1912 the Board of Grain Commissioners for Canada was created as a semi-judicial and administrative body to administer the Act. Its duties and powers are to provide for the inspection, weighing and registration of grain; to license and supervise the operation of grain elevators; to collect and collate grain statistics; to maintain a grain research laboratory; to operate terminal elevators constructed by the Dominion Government; and to inquire into any matter upon or without complaint made relating to the handling of grain under the Act. It also administers the Inland Water Freight Rates Act.

The board, which consists of a chief commissioner and two commissioners, has its offices in Winnipeg. Four assistant commissioners, stationed respectively at Winnipeg, Calgary, Saskatoon and Fort William, investigate complaints and thereafter make a full report to the board. In addition to the executive offices, which include the secretary with clerical staff, the Licence and Bonding and Statistics Branch, the organization comprises the Inspection, Weighing and Registration branches, the management of the Canadian Government Elevators, the Grain Appeal Tribunals to decide on appeals from decisions of grain inspecting officers, and Committees on Grain Standards to select and settle standards for the different grades of grain in the Eastern and Western divisions.

Inspection offices are located at Winnipeg, Calgary and Edmonton for primary inspection, at Fort William and Vancouver for terminal and final inspection, at Montreal and Toronto for resampling and checking western grain passing through the Eastern division, and grading grain grown in the Eastern division. Inspection services are also maintained at all other points at which terminal elevators are situated. The Weighing Branch provides weighing services on all grain delivered to or shipped from terminal elevators and maintains staffs at all points at which terminal elevators are situated. The Registration Branch records all terminal and Eastern warehouse receipts and transfer receipts for grain unloaded into terminal or Eastern elevators, and cancels these receipts when the grain is shipped. Of the public terminal elevators constructed by the Department of Trade and Commerce only those at Moose Jaw, Saskatoon, Lethbridge, Calgary, and Edmonton are now maintained and operated by a general manager under the board. The Grain Research Laboratory at Winnipeg acts in an advisory capacity to the board, conducts investigations to determine the value of the different grades and varieties of grain, and investigates problems connected with grading, transportation and storage, moisture content and other problems peculiar to grain.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics

A Commission on Statistics in 1912 recommended a series of specific reforms and enlargements in Canadian statistics, and a policy of statistical co-ordination for the Dominion, under central direction.

Following the recommendations of this report, the office of Dominion Statistician was created in 1915 and three years later the Dominion Bureau of Statistics was set up by statute as a central statistical organization.

At present the main branches of the Bureau are: Administration; population—census, social analysis, and vital statistics; agricultural statistics; fisheries, furs, animal and dairy products; mining, metallurgical and chemical; forestry and allied industries; construction; general manufactures; external trade (imports and exports); internal trade; transportation; financial statistics; statistics of administration of justice; institutional statistics; educational statistics; and general statistics.

The main achievement of the bureau has been in the organization of the several subjects in correlation with each other in accordance with this general plan, and the consequent establishment of a comprehensive viewpoint of the country as a "going concern." In addition, there has been created what is frequently called a central "thinking office" in statistics, continuously in touch with general conditions and the line of probable developments.

The final concept in the organization of the Bureau of Statistics is that of a national laboratory for social and economic research. Statistics are not merely a record of what has been, but are for use in planning what shall be; it is the duty of a statistical bureau to assist directly in the day-to-day problems of administration, as well as to provide their theoretic background. One of the most significant of recent developments in administration is the extent to which statistical organization has been increased as a guide to national policy. Though its usefulness has only begun, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics has laid the foundations for a service comparable with the increasingly important position taken by Canada in the economic and political world.

Canadian Government Exhibition Commission

For many years Canadian exhibits abroad were designed to present the Dominion as a land of opportunity for the settler and with increased immigration as the objective, the displays consisted almost entirely of natural resources. But as Canada advanced to the front rank of exporters among the nations of the world and manufactured products commenced to form an appreciable portion of her exports, the character of these exhibits was changed accordingly. The Exhibition Commission, which had been created to take charge of Canada's participation in international exhibitions, was transferred to the Department of Trade and Commerce in 1927, and as most of the exhibitions were being held in the United Kingdom and in Europe, the headquarters with staff and stores was moved to London.

The headquarters in London consists of a commissioner, assistant commissioner, and a staff of designers, decorators, painters and workmen with warehouses for the storage of equipment and exhibits. The commission is represented in Ottawa by a liaison officer with two branch offices at St. Catharines, Ontario, and Winnipeg, Manitoba, for the collection and preparation of exhibits.

While originally the Commission was concerned in organizing Canada's participation in international exhibitions, gradually continuous exhibition propaganda to stimulate throughout the year the sale of Canadian products especially in the United Kingdom, has been developed to a point where this work, measured by expenditure, accounts for seventy-five per cent. of its activities. The aim of the Commission is now to work out methods by which practical assistance can be extended to Canadian producers and manufacturers in accordance with the opportunities offered to increase the sale of their goods through the medium of exhibitions of various kinds.

Trade Publicity Services in the United Kingdom

With a view to rendering more efficient the exhibition, advertising, publicity and film activities in promoting the sale of Canadian products and strengthening the efforts of the Canadian Trade Commissioners, all Canadian publicity services in the United Kingdom at the beginning of the last fiscal year were placed under the Department of Trade and Commerce. Plans for re-organization and unification are being put into effect, which, when completed, will facilitate co-operation between the several Departments of the Government identified with advertising and trade promotion, will prevent duplication of expenditure and effort and secure co-ordination of these activities under the direction of the High Commissioner for Canada in London.

Previously the vote for trade publicity had been administered by the Department of External Affairs, the vote for the Canadian Government Exhibition Commission by the Department of Trade and Commerce, and Canadian films were being circulated in the United Kingdom through three separate organizations. Under the present system all financial provision for governmental assistance to the promotion of Canadian trade abroad, including any appropriations for advertising and trade publicity, is made in the estimates of the Department of Trade and Commerce and subject to the supervision of the Minister.

An Advisory Committee on Trade Publicity Overseas, comprising representatives of the Department of Trade and Commerce, External Affairs, Agriculture and Fisheries, has been set up in Ottawa to secure collaboration between the several Departments concerned in regard to special aspects of Government advertising and publicity policy abroad.

An Advisory Committee on Publicity, under the chairmanship of the High Commissioner for Canada, continues to carry out the work it had been doing in connection with the vote for Government advertising and publicity in the United Kingdom. The members of this Committee include the Chief Trade Commissioner, the Director of Exhibitions and Publicity, and representatives of the Department of External Affairs on the staff of the High Commissioner. Representatives in London of other Government Departments, particularly Agriculture, Fisheries and Mines and Resources, are afforded an opportunity of suggesting items for the agenda and attending meetings.

The expenditure of the publicity vote comes under two headings, first, continuance of the "Canada Calling" campaign, and, second, other publicity measures. The "Canada Calling" campaign was the title of a plan adopted in 1936 to stimulate the consumption of Canadian produce in Great Britain and Northern Ireland. The results in the past two years have been so satisfactory as to justify its continuance for the present year.

Expenditure for other publicity includes press advertising, film publicity and displays at exhibitions. A portion of the appropriation is utilized on the Continent.

Publicity

To meet the increasing demand from Canadian and foreign publications for informative and interpretive material relative to both external and internal affairs, the Publicity Branch was organized about ten years ago. Its primary functions are to prepare such articles, or supply material for articles, to trade and industrial publications both at home and abroad. It also places in the Canadian press such advertising as may be deemed desirable from time to time to direct attention to the services which the Department offers to Canadian business men and in selected publications in foreign countries featuring Canadian sources of supply and Canadian products.

Canadian Trade Commissioners are furnished regularly for local distribution with news items and pictorial matter concerning Canada which is finding its way to an ever increasing extent in the rotogravure and other sections of the leading newspapers throughout the world.

With the co-operation of the Department of Transport and through the Canadian Press, a daily radio news service thoroughly Canadian in character is provided to all shipping on the Pacific Ocean within a listening radius.

Canadian Government Motion Picture Bureau

The Canadian Government Motion Picture Bureau was organized in its present form in 1922 for the production and distribution of films and photographic materials and to act as a central organization for the production of such materials for all Government Departments. The headquarters and plant are in Ottawa.

Its activities are carried on under three divisions, viz: motion picture division, 16mm. film division, and still photographic division. The Bureau is completely equipped with the most up-to-date facilities for the production and processing of all kinds of sound and silent films, film slides, photographs, lantern slides, enlargements, transparencies and other photographic materials for the purpose of disseminating information with respect to Canadian resources, basic industries, scenic attractions, etc., and by this means to promote trade and tourist travel.

The bulk of the film and photographic work in field, studio and laboratory is performed by its permanent staff, but contact is maintained with selected cinematographers and photographers in all parts of Canada to whom, if occasion demands, assignments may be given, thus ensuring, at all times, Dominion-wide coverage. Close co-operation is also maintained with the Photographic Section of the Royal Canadian Air Force, the Photographic Department of the Canadian National Railways and other similar organizations.

The following table indicates the distribution of films representing a total footage of approximately 5,500,000 feet in active circulation as of December 31st, 1938:

Territory:—	Approximate Number of Films in Circulation
Australia, New Zealand, Tasmania, etc.	166

Review of Canada's Foreign Trade, 1937-38

Canada's external trade in the fiscal year ended March 31, 1938, again recorded an increase over the preceding fiscal period. Declines in imports in the last three months and in exports in the last half of 1937-38, as compared with 1936-37, were offset by gains earlier in the year. For the full twelve months ended March 31, 1938, imports reached a value of $799,070,000 and exports $1,084,821,000, being increases over 1936-37 of 19 per cent. and 1 per cent., respectively. Compared with the depression low reached in 1932-33 imports in 1937-38 represented a gain of 97 per cent. and exports 103 per cent.

Imports gained in quantity as well as volume. The quantity of exports in 1937-38 declined by 8.6 per cent. as compared with the previous year, this decline being more than counterbalanced by a rise in export prices.

NOTE:—It is pointed out with reference to the statistics in the above table, and particularly regarding Canada's imports in 1935-36, 1936-37 and 1937-38 throughout this report, that the excise duty which has been included in the value of distilled spirits, chiefly whiskey, imported into Canada from countries entitled to the British Preferential Tariff since the fiscal year 1920-21, is excluded as from April 1, 1935. Imports in 1935-36, 1936-37 and 1937-38, particularly from United Kingdom, are consequently lower than would otherwise be the case.

It will be noted from the statistics in the above table that in spite of the sharp decline in exports during the last six months of 1937-38 as compared with 1936-37, the balance of trade, although reduced from the extraordinarily high figure recorded last year, remains favourable to the extent of $285,751,000.

Coincident with the expansion of import trade, the amount of duty collected increased from $92,282,000 in 1936-37 to $103,574,000 in 1937-38. Notwithstanding this increase in duty collected, the average ad valorem rate (i.e. the amount of duty expressed as a percentage of the value of imports) declined from 13.7 per cent. on all imports in 1936-37 to 13.0 per cent. in 1937-38. On dutiable imports alone, the rate was 24.9 per cent. in 1936-37 and 23.9 per cent. in 1937-38. The proportion of imports which were free of duty was substantially the same in both years.

Canada's Position in World Trade

It will be seen from statistics in the following table that Canada maintained its rank among the leading trading nations as the world's fourth exporting country and eighth in respect to imports. In total trade Canada moved from fifth to sixth position, being supplanted by Japan whose trade, particularly imports, reflected the stimulus to import requirements arising out of military activities in China.

Proportions of Trade in Raw and Manufactured Products

The stage attained in the industrial development of a country is indicated by the character of the goods it imports and exports. In the early years of Canada's development imports were made up chiefly of manufactured products and exports of raw and semi-manufactured products. Since the opening of the twentieth century this has been almost reversed; a large percentage of the imports consisting of raw and semi-manufactured products for use in Canadian manufacturing industries, and the exports consisting predominantly of products which have undergone some process of manufacture. In fact, the leading manufactures of Canada are for the processing of raw materials in the production of which Canada excels, and many of these processed domestic products are marketed abroad. Furthermore, as the population of the country grows, the range of elaborated goods formerly imported, which may be manufactured on a competitive basis of mass production within the country, expands, so that there are now many industries in Canada, serving the domestic and even foreign markets, using imported raw materials such as rubber, cotton and sugar. Since the opening of the present century, Canada has passed through much the same stages of development in her economic life as did the United States during the last quarter of the nineteenth century, although the trend in Canada has been more pronounced in increasing the proportion of partly and fully manufactured goods as compared with raw materials exported, rather than in increasing the proportion of raw materials compared with that of partly and fully manufactured goods imported. Since 1929, the rapid decline in commodity prices, which has affected raw materials more than manufactured goods, has tended to increase the percentages of both imports and exports of manufactures on a value basis.

In Canada, grains (chiefly wheat) and in the United States, raw cotton, grains (principally wheat) and raw tobacco are the leading commodities which comprise the bulk of the exports of raw materials. It is of interest to note the results in Canada and the United States when certain staple raw materials of farm origin, which are reproducible annually, are eliminated, such as grains, fresh fruits and vegetables, seeds and raw tobacco, for both countries, and raw cotton for the United States. The results, for the years 1900 to 1937, are set forth in the following table:—

It will be observed from the statistics in the following table, showing "Canada's Imports and Exports by Leading Countries, according to Degree of Manufacture", fiscal year 1937-38, that Canada's imports from those countries with highly developed manufacturing industries consist of manufactured products and her exports to those countries are made up largely of raw and semi-manufactured products; while on the other hand Canada's trade with countries whose industries are not so highly developed consist chiefly, in the case of imports, of raw and semi-manufactured products and in the case of exports, of manufactured products.

The following table shows how Canada's imports and exports, analyzed into three categories of raw materials, semi-manufactured products and fully manufactured goods, are distributed amongst (a) the United Kingdom; (b) Other Empire Countries; (c) the United States; and (d) other foreign Countries, for the fiscal years ended March 31, 1931-32 to 1937-38.

Exports of Gold in Canadian Statistics

In Canadian trade statistics gold exported as merchandise is included as such as a part of the total commodity exports. Gold exported is considered merchandise when the export does not reduce domestic monetary reserves. The present procedure was determined by the Bureau of Statistics in conference with the Bank of Canada and the Department of National Revenue and dates from April 1, 1936. Statistics for earlier years have been revised back to 1926. In former times there was a movement of gold from Canada in the form of "Gold-bearing quartz, dust, nuggets and gold bullion obtained direct from mining operations". When the Royal Mint in Ottawa began to refine gold, exports formerly shipped as "Gold-bearing quartz, dust, etc." began to be exported in the form of bullion and was recorded under Coin and Bullion as distinct from Merchandise. In order to maintain comparability with the statistics of previous years, and also since Canada is a large gold-producing country and exports of gold are as much a part of national production as any other item, it was considered expedient to make the change indicated.

Since February, 1936, the Bank of Canada has been holding gold under earmark for clients abroad. This fact directly influences exports. Holdings of gold under earmark from February, 1936 to March 1938, are shown below:—

Principal Exports From Canada, 1937-38

Agricultural and Vegetable Products decreased from $346,451,000 in 1936-37 to $235,324,000 in 1937-38, a decrease of 32.1 per cent. This decrease was almost entirely accounted for by the drop in exports of grains, principally wheat, barley, oats and rye. Other commodities which showed decreases were: Vegetables; bran, shorts and middlings; screenings; sugar and products; alcoholic beverages; oilcake; oils, inedible; fodders, n.o.p. and hay. Under this group fruits; cereal foods; malt; oatmeal and rolled oats; wheat flour; rubber manufactures; seeds and raw tobacco, showed increases.

Export items showing increases under the group of Animals and Animal Products, which increased by 1.6 per cent. from $133,941,000 in 1936-37 to $136,113,000 in 1937-38, included cattle for improvement of stock; poultry, n.o.p.; fish; hair; leather manufactures; meats (principally bacon and hams); cheese; processed milk; fish oil and eggs. Among the items under this group for which exports were smaller in 1937-38 were: Animals for exhibition; cattle, except for stock; horses, n.o.p.; swine, n.o.p.; furs; hides and skins; leather, unmanufactured; lard and compounds; tallow and tannage.

Exports of Fibres and Textiles increased from $12,830,000 in 1936-37 to $14,225,000 in 1937-38, or by 10.9 per cent. Important items showing increases under this group were: Flax, hemp and jute products; cotton and woollen clothing; silk socks and stockings; artificial silk; binder twine; felt manufactures and gloves and mitts. Exports of silk manufactures; raw wool and rags decreased.

Owing to greater exports of logs; pickets; poles; planks and boards; pulpwood; square timber; wood pulp; book, newsprint and wrapping paper, as well as other smaller items in the group, exports of Wood, Wood Products and Paper increased from $223,918,000 to $253,435,000, or 13.2 per cent., from 1936-37 to 1937-38. Moderate declines were registered by exports of laths; shingles and books and printed matter.

Exports of Iron and Its Products increased from $53,173,000 in 1936-37 to $69,744,000 in 1937-38. Pigs, ingots and billets; tubes and pipes; engines and boilers; farm implements; hardware and cutlery; machinery; tools and automobiles and parts were among the items accounting for the increase; while exports of scrap iron; rolling mill products and wire, declined.

Exports under the Non-Ferrous Metals group increased by 27.1 per cent., from $230,152,000 in 1936-37 to $292,453,000 in 1937-38. Items under this group showing increases included aluminium; brass; copper; lead; nickel; precious metal (except platinum concentrates); zinc and electric apparatus. Items which showed declines were platinum concentrates and cobalt ore.

Increased exports of asbestos; clay products; coke; creosote oil; artificial abrasives and gypsum principally accounted for the increase of 12.5 per cent., under the Non-Metallic Mineral Products group in 1937-38, as compared with 1936-37. Decreases were shown in coal; glass and glassware; petroleum products and sulphur.

Cellulose products; drugs and medicines; cobalt oxide; fertilizers; paints and varnishes; soap and sodium compounds were among the items under the Chemicals and Allied Products group showing increases, while acids declined.

Exports of Miscellaneous Commodities increased by 21.2 per cent. in 1937-38 over 1936-37. Contributing to the increase were aeroplanes and parts; containers; electrical energy; films; refrigerators and parts; settlers' effects and ships.

The preceding table shows exports of eighty-six leading commodities from Canada in 1937-38 with increase or decrease, compared with 1936-37. The items shown account for over 93 per cent. of total exports. Sixty-one of the eighty-six items increased in value of exports and twenty-nine of the items for which quantities are recorded increased in volume.

Distribution of Canada's Trade by Continents and Countries

In 1937-38 Canada purchased more goods from every continent, except South America, than in 1936-37. As a source of supply to Canada, North America was in the first position by a wide margin. Imports from North America were predominantly from the United States, which supplied over sixty per cent. of the Dominion's total imports, and more than two and one-half times those obtained from Europe. As a percentage of the total, imports from Europe declined in 1937-38 as compared with the previous year, while the proportion from North America increased.

Canada sold more goods to Europe in 1937-38 than to any other continent. Total exports to Europe amounted to $480,600,000 of which the United Kingdom absorbed $409,400,000. North America took second place in 1937-38 with exports of $453,400,000, although the United States, to which exports amounted to $423,100,000, again purchased more than any other individual country. The continents of Europe and North America, including the great consuming markets of the United Kingdom and the United States, accounted together for 87.3 per cent. of Canada's exports in 1937-38, compared with 89.4 per cent. in the previous year. The remaining 13 per cent. was distributed principally between Asia and Oceania, the former taking as much, and the latter more than South America and Africa combined.

The following statement on imports from forty leading countries shows how predominant the two great English-speaking countries are as a source of Canadian imports. The United States supplied 60 per cent. of the Dominion's imports in 1937-38, while the United Kingdom, although having about one-third the United States' share in Canada's imports, had, nevertheless, almost ten times as large a share as British Straits Settlements which ranks third. The countries shown in the table account for about 99 per cent. of total imports in each year. The wide geographical distribution of the increase in imports is indicated by the number of plus signs in the last three columns of the table. Imports from thirty-six of the forty countries increased in 1937-38 as compared with 1934-35; twenty-seven increased as compared with 1935-36; and twenty-four increased as compared with 1936-37.

The following table shows "Canada's Domestic Exports to Forty Leading Countries". The countries shown account for over 98 per cent. of total domestic exports in each year. The United States and United Kingdom rank first and second respectively as export markets, the United States being first in the last four fiscal years, while the United Kingdom was first in 1933-34. Statistics of Canadian exports, by countries, should be read with the qualification that all the goods shown as exported to some countries may not finally be consumed in those countries, while on the other hand other countries may ultimately buy and use more Canadian goods than the Canadian export statistics indicate. For example, exports to the United Kingdom are known to include large amounts of wheat and other grains shipped "on order". The final destination is not known at the time of exportation from Canada. Similarly, considerable quantities of Canadian exports are consigned to one or other of the great European free ports and thence transhipped to the country of consumption. Since the country of final destination in these cases is not known at the time when the goods leave Canada, even to the owners, exports to such countries as the United Kingdom, Belgium, Netherlands, etc., which carry on a large entrepot trade, are higher than would be the case if the exports in question were credited to the countries of final consumption. Exports to other countries such as Norway, Switzerland, Czechoslovakia, etc., which obtain Canadian goods indirectly, would be correspondingly higher than the Canadian export statistics indicate.

Trade of Canada Via United States

The three following tables show in summary the value of Canada's imports and exports via the United States, and principal commodities exported from Canada to overseas countries via the United States and via Canadian sea or river ports. Included with exports shown as being shipped via the United States are substantial amounts of grain, and possibly other commodities, exported from Canada (e.g., from Fort William and Port Arthur) via the United States, which are subsequently re-routed from United States for shipment via Canadian sea or river ports, chiefly Montreal, and to this extent the figures respecting exports via the United States are overstated.

Agriculture

To get a proper perspective of Canadian agriculture one has to consider the value of agricultural production in relation to Canadian industry as a whole. With agricultural production valued at $1,051,698,000 for 1937, agriculture was the outstanding contributor to national wealth among the primary industries, and was exceeded only by manufactures in the industries of secondary production.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics estimates the gross value of agricultural production of Canada at $1,051,698,000 for 1937 as compared with $1,079,571,000, the revised estimate for 1936. This represents a decrease of $27,873,000 or 2.6 per cent. The value of agricultural production of the prairie provinces was estimated at $390,643,000 in 1937, compared with $412,191,000 for the previous year.

The total area sown to the principal field crops in 1938 was estimated at 57,121,000 acres, an increase of 442 thousand acres as compared with 1937.

The per capita consumption of eggs increased from 16.8 dozens in 1920 to 21.49 dozens in 1937. Total consumption of butter in 1921 was 25.79 pounds; in 1937 it reached 32.71, cheese used in 1921 amounted to 2.51 pounds per capita and last year 3.53 pounds. In 1921 the per capita consumption of ice cream was 4.96 pints, in 1931 it had grown to 6.32 pints and in 1937 decreased to 6.04 pints.

The value of farm capital of Canada in 1937 as estimated by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics amounted to 4.7 billion dollars, made up as follows:

Land and Buildings	$3,634,981,000
Implements and Machinery	478,454,000
*Livestock	609,148,000

Total..... $4,722,583,000

*Including poultry and animals on fur farms.

This figure is $96,422,000 greater than the value for 1936 which amounted to $4,626,161,000. Reductions in value were shown for implements and machinery.

The distribution of agricultural capital in Canada by provinces is interesting in that it follows closely the distribution of population, as is shown by the following figures for 1937:

PROVINCE	Estimated Value of Farm Capital	Production
Prince Edward Island	$ 57,347,000	$ 12,870,000
Nova Scotia.....	114,527,000	27,932,000
New Brunswick	103,454,000	26,517,000
Quebec.....	874,645,000	191,510,000
Ontario.....	1,392,025,000	357,201,000
Manitoba.....	331,304,000	121,253,000
Saskatchewan.....	1,014,756,000	91,902,000
Alberta.....	688,359,000	177,488,000
British Columbia	146,166,000	45,025,000
Total	$4,722,583,000	$1,051,698,000

From these figures it will be apparent that it took $4.49 of investment to produce $1.00 of revenue in the agricultural industry last year.

The relative standing of the several sources of Canadian agricultural revenue for the years 1933 to 1937 are shown in the following table (in thousands of dollars):

From a financial standpoint, despite depressions in prices, the Canadian farming industry appears to be on an essentially sound basis.

Under the Dairy Industry Act administered by the Federal Department of Agriculture, all butter and cheese for export must be graded, as a result of which Canadian dairy products have gained a reputation second to none on the export market. In fact Canadian cheese commands a premium over all other cheese imported into the markets of the United Kingdom.

The total value of field crops in Canada in 1938 is estimated at $527,419,000 as compared with $558,387,000 in 1937 a decrease of 5.5 per cent. The preliminary estimate places the Canadian apple crop for 1938 at 5,175,000 barrels. This is 25,900 barrels more than the 1937 crop, and approximately 743,736 barrels above the average for the five years 1931-35.

The yield of potatoes for 1938 amounted to 35,774,000 cwt., a decrease of 15.9 per cent. from last year's production, but higher prices increased the value by 25.9 per cent.

The increased popularity of Canadian fruit and vegetables, both fresh and canned, on the export market is due essentially to the grading and inspection service and regulations provided by the Government.

Fisheries

The value of production of the commercial fisheries of Canada in 1937 amounted to $38,976,294, compared with $39,165,055 in 1936. These values are for the fish as marketed, whether sold for consumption fresh, or canned, cured or otherwise prepared. The principal kinds of fish (those with an individual value of production of one million dollars or over) are, in order of value: salmon, lobster, cod, herring, whitefish, halibut, sardine, haddock, pickerel and trout. Chief of these is the salmon with a value in 1937 of $12,370,219, of which 96 per cent. is credited to the British Columbia output. Compared with the preceding year, the salmon fishery shows a decrease in quantity of catch of 305,491 cwt., and a decrease in marketed value of $1,497,294. Lobster and cod are second and third respectively, the former with a value of $4,633,429, and the latter with $5,140,230. Of the several kinds mentioned above, the sea fisheries claim the lobster, cod, halibut, sardine and haddock, and most of the quantities of salmon and herring caught, while from the inland waters of the Dominion come the whitefish, pickerel and trout and small quantities of salmon and herring. On the Atlantic coast, the lobster and cod fisheries are of chief importance and on the Pacific, the salmon, halibut and herring.

British Columbia, by reason of its salmon fishery is first among the provinces in order of value of product, and is followed by Nova Scotia with its important lobster and cod fisheries. The value of output of the British Columbia fisheries in 1937 was $16,155,439, or 41 per cent. of the total for Canada, and the value of the Nova Scotia fisheries was $9,229,834, or 24 per cent. of the total. New Brunswick is third in order of value, and Ontario is not far behind.

The total quantity of fish of all kinds, including shell fish, caught and landed by Canadian fishermen during the year was $10,918,048 cwt., and the value at the point of landing was $23,194,642, compared with a catch of 11,088,279 cwt. and a landed value of $22,083,550 in the preceding year. This shows an average value at the point of landing of $2.12 per cwt., compared with $1.99 per cwt. in 1936.

Exports.—The value of exports of Canada's fish and fish products in 1937 was $28,902,152, an increase over the preceding year of $3,504,050, or 14 per cent., and an increase over 1935 of $4,042,666, or 16 per cent. The principal customers are the United States and the United Kingdom, the value of exports to the former country amounting to $6,721,764, or 23 per cent. of the total, while exports to the latter country were valued at $14,004,575, or 48 per cent. The exports to all countries within the British Empire, combined, give a total value of $11,178,572, and to foreign countries a total of $17,723,580, the exports to the United States accounting for 79 per cent. of this latter figure. The trade tables record a total of 84 countries which received shipments of Canadian fish and fish products in 1937. The largest single items of export were canned salmon ($7,533,648), fresh lobster ($2,438,400), canned lobster ($1,984,167), fresh and frozen salmon ($1,652,145), fresh and frozen white fish ($1,605,862), and dried cod ($1,210,661). The export trade in canned salmon is world-wide, with record of shipments in 1937 to 66 countries: chief among these are the United Kingdom (196,729 cwt.), Australia (144,809 cwt.), France (59,212 cwt.), the United States (55,975 cwt.), and British South Africa (35,510 cwt.). The chief countries of destination for the exports of canned lobster are the United Kingdom, the United States and France, and for dried cod, the West Indies and the United States. The export of fresh and frozen fish is chiefly to the United States.

Imports.—Canada's importation of fish and fish products is relatively small. In 1937 the imports had a total value of $2,877,131, a decrease from the preceding year of $41,120. The main items of import are cod liver oil ($369,109), sardines ($319,202), oysters ($275,345) and crabs or clams ($225,011).

Forest Resources

In Canada there are approximately one hundred and sixty different species and varieties of plants reaching tree size. Only thirty-one of these are coniferous, but their wood forms 80 per cent. of the standing timber and 95 per cent. of the sawn timber. While the actual number of species of deciduous-leaved trees seems large in comparison to their commercial importance, out of a total of some ninety species and varieties only four or five are worthy of comparison with the conifers.

Of the total area under forest at the present time, amounting to 1,223,522 square miles, about 360,548 square miles carries merchantable timber, and 408,915 square miles carries young growth which if protected from fire and other damage will eventually produce merchantable timber. All this area is so situated as to be commercially exploitable at present. The remaining 454,059 square miles is considered as non-productive or unprofitable to operate under present conditions, although most of it will undoubtedly become commercially exploitable in the near future. In round figures some ninety per cent. of Canada's forest area is still owned by the state.

Forest Depletion

It has been estimated that Canada's total forest production in 1936 involved the cutting of 2,702,766 cubic feet of standing timber. This constitutes only the depletion for use and to it must be added the volume of material destroyed by fire, which averages 267,000,000 cubic feet of merchantable timber and the young growth on 848,000 acres. Insects and fungi destroy annually at least 700,-000,000 cubic feet, making a total drain on our forest resources of more than 3,550,000,000 cubic feet. The latest available estimate places Canada's forest resources at 273,656 million cubic feet of standing timber. There is a steady increase in volume taking place in all healthy stands of timber due to annual growth; this can be stimulated by the application of scientific forest management. It is now a profitable investment to plant trees in Canada under certain conditions.

The production of sawn timber in Canada reached its maximum in 1911 with a reported cut of 4,918,202 M. ft. b.m. The 1936 production represents an increase of 14.8 per cent. in quantity from 1935. The products of the group of industries under sawmill operations are compared for 1935 and 1936 in the preceding table.

Fur Trade

Hunting and fishing are among the earliest pursuits known to mankind, and it was the lure of the fur trade which brought adventurers to what is now the Canadian domain and led to the colonization and development of the country. There have been many changes since the industry was first established. The railway revolutionized conditions throughout the country, then more recently the advent of the motor vehicle has influenced the extension of highways to the borders of settlement, and beyond. Boats ply the larger lakes and rivers, while for the transportation of furs from the more inaccessible districts, the aeroplane is now requisitioned. Competition has increased and new territory is eagerly sought as in the days prior to 1921. This increase in trapping and the improved methods of capture, together with the advance of lumbering, mining and agricultural settlement, have driven fur-bearing animals farther and farther afield, and if government authority had not intervened there would inevitably have followed a general depletion, and for some species, extinction. To meet the situation, the provinces, all of which have jurisdiction in matters affecting the fur-bearing animals and game in their respective provinces, have enacted laws to control the fur trade. Under these laws the provinces may make provision for closed seasons, for the licensing of trappers and traders, for the collection of royalties on pelts, state the methods which may be used in the capture of the animals, and make such other regulations, from time to time, as may be found necessary. Conservation has been made a special object of policy of the Dominion Government, also, through the organization in 1916 of the Advisory Board of Wild Life Protection, to co-ordinate the efforts of various departments in matters relating to the conservation of the wild life resources of Canada. The Northwest Game Act and the Migratory Birds Convention Act are the most important subjects to which the attention of the Board is specially directed and upon which it makes advisory recommendations. In addition, the Board investigates and studies all problems relating to the protection and better utilization of all fur-bearing animals, "big game" mammals and to bird life, whether game birds, insectivorous birds, or others. The Board serves entirely without remuneration and during the whole period of its existence it has incurred no expenditure. The activities of the Dominion as a whole, with respect to wild life, are co-ordinated through biennial conferences of Provincial and Dominion Game Protection officials. These conferences are called by the Department of Mines and Resources, and have done much good in evolving plans for the preservation of Canada's wild life resources.

Fur farming now plays an important part in the fur trade of Canada, the value of pelts of ranch-bred animals representing approximately 40 per cent of the total value of the raw fur production of the Dominion. For many years fur farming was concerned almost entirely with the silver fox, but during the past few years much success has been attained in the raising of minks. Other kinds of fur-bearers—red, cross and blue fox, raccoon, skunk, marten, fisher, fitch—are also found on the farms, but their numbers are small in comparison with the numbers of silver foxes and minks.

The chief markets for Canadian furs are London and New York; the trade tables for the 12 months ended June 30, 1937, show that of the total of $18,529,254 worth of raw furs exported, the United Kingdom received $10,384,268 and the United States, $7,217,087. At the close of the Great War, Montreal took a position as an international fur market, holding the first Canadian fur auction sale in 1920. At the sales held in Montreal during the year 1937 the pelts sold numbered 922,615, while the value amounted to $5,666,991. Fur auction sales are held also at Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver. An important industry in Canada is the manufacture of fur goods, such as coats, capes, scarves, muffs, etc. In 1936 the number of plants so engaged was 331, and the total value of output $14,474,935. Then there is the fur dressing and dyeing industry whose 14 plants in 1936 treated fur skins to the number of 6,221,363. The chief kinds of furs, with regard to number treated, were rabbit (3,334,077) and muskrat (955,181).

Minerals

Canada's mineral industry is second in importance among the primary industries of the Dominion. It is surpassed in value of output only by the great basic industry of agriculture and brings to the nation a prestige far beyond the monetary measure of the mineral output. In 1937 Canada's gold mining companies purchased equipment and supplies to the value of $40,625,357 and her base metal mines, smelters and refineries expended over $59,331,709.

In 1937, among the mineral producing countries of the world, Canada stood first in nickel, platinum metals and asbestos, second in gold, silver and zinc, and fourth in copper and lead.

Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia are the three leading mineral producing provinces though Alberta and Nova Scotia lead in coal production. The output of minerals from Manitoba and Saskatchewan is growing annually and new developments in the Northwest Territories indicate great mineral possibilities in that area.

¹ In accordance with a resolution passed by the Conference of British Commonwealth Statisticians, 1935, the net value of production is now computed by subtracting the cost of fuel and electricity as well as the cost of materials from the gross value of the products. Prior to this, only the cost of materials was deducted. The figures for 1924 and later years have been revised in accordance with this resolution. The revision could not be carried back further as statistics for cost of electricity are not available for years prior to 1924.

² Central electric stations, and dyeing, cleaning and laundry work ceased to be regarded as "manufacturing" industries for 1936 and adjustments for earlier years will be made in the near future. This affects the comparability of the figures for 1936.

This affects the comparability of the figures given in this table in comparison with those of earlier years.

Employment

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics has maintained since 1920 a monthly record of the employment afforded by employers in eight leading industries—manufacturing, logging, mining, communications, transportation, construction, services and trade. This record constitutes a valuable index to the current business situation, reflecting conditions among a large proportion of the wage-earning population. During the months, Jan. 1-Nov. 1, 1938, statements were tabulated from an average of 10,800 employers whose staffs, varying from 1,001,970 at April 1 to 1,119,291 at Oct. 1, averaged 1,067,400 in the eleven months. The index (1926—100), averaged 111.6, as compared with 113.4 in the same period of 1937. In the year 1929, when industrial activity was at the maximum in this record, the index averaged 119.0.

A brief review of the situation shows that in Quebec and the Prairie Provinces, slight improvement was shown in 1938 over 1937, but in the remaining economic areas the situation was not so favourable. While employment in most industries was quieter than in 1937, it was maintained at a relatively high level as compared with 1936 and immediately preceding years. In manufacturing, the index averaged 111.1 in the first eleven months of 1938, or slightly lower than that of 114.3 in the same period of 1937; as compared with 1936, however, there was an increase of about eight per cent.

Among the non-manufacturing industries, logging reported serious curtailment in 1938, following the unusual activity of 1937; employment in transportation and communications was slightly lower than in 1937, but rather higher than in 1936. Construction and services reported somewhat greater activity than in either 1937 or 1936, while in trade the average index in the first eleven months of 1938 was practically the same as in the same period of the preceding year, but exceeded that indicated in 1936. Mining on the whole was rather brisker than in 1937, and afforded considerably more employment than in any earlier year of the record.

Canada's rich endowment in water power resources is the outflow of a fresh water area more than two and a half times the combined water and land area of Great Britain. The abundance and wide distribution of these resources and of their development is shown in Table 1. (above). The water power resources included in this tabulation provide for a total commercial installation of about 43,700,000 h.p. (more than five and one-third times the installation at January 1, 1939), seasonal shortages being provided for by water storage, by interconnection with plants operating under different load and water conditions or by fuel auxiliary plants.

Canada's total hydraulic installation of 8,190,772 h.p. is divided in Table 2 below according to the purpose of the various developments. Approximately 98 per cent. of the electricity sold by central electric stations for power purposes is produced by water power and this combined with the water power installations maintained by the manufacturing industries results in more than 80 per cent. of Canada's industrial power equipment being operated hydraulically.

The figures listed in Columns 2 and 3 in the above table represent 24-hour power and are based upon rapids, falls and power sites of which the actual drop or the head possible of concentration has been measured or at least carefully estimated. Many unrecorded rapids and falls of undetermined power capacity exist on rivers and streams from coast to coast. These will only become available for tabulation as more detailed survey work is completed; this is particularly true in the less explored northern districts. Also, no consideration has been given to the power concentrations which are feasible on rivers and streams of gradual gradient, where economic heads may be created by the construction of power dams, unless definite studies have been carried out and the results made matters of record.

Column 4 gives the total capacity of the water wheels actually installed throughout the Dominion; these figures should not be placed in direct comparison with those in Column 2 and 3 to deduce the percentage of the available water power resources developed to date. The water wheel installation throughout the Dominion averages 30 per cent. greater than the corresponding maximum available power figures for developed sites calculated as in Column 3. The above figures, therefore, indicate that the at present recorded water power resources of the Dominion will permit of a turbine installation of about 43,700,000 horse power. In other words, the present turbine installation represents almost 18¾ per cent. of the present recorded water power resources and the figures in Table 1 may be said to represent the minimum water power possibilities of the Dominion.

Column 2 includes only hydro-electric stations which develop power for sale.

Column 3 includes only water power ACTUALLY DEVELOPED by pulp and paper companies. In addition to this turbine installation pulp and paper companies have motor equipment for operation by hydro-electricity purchased from the central electric stations totalled in Column 2, aggregating more than 1,200,000 h.p., making a total of more than 1,846,000 h.p. actually developed for the manufacture of pulp and paper. Large amounts of electricity are also purchased for use in electric boilers rated at more than one and three-quarters million horse power.

Column 4 includes only water power actually developed in connection with industries other than the central electric station and pulp and paper industries. These industries also purchase power from the central electric stations totalled in Column 2.

Column 5 totals all water wheels and hydraulic turbines installed in Canada.

Column 6 shows the population of Canada at June 1, 1938, as estimated by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Column 7 averages the developed water power per 1,000 population.

Five Methods of Doing Export Business

On the following pages will be found articles by experienced Canadian exporters who have proved by results obtained that their methods are correct.

These articles do not include all known methods, but they do cover the majority of recognized methods that so far have proved successful in Canada. Many firms operate combinations of these methods, depending on the types of markets to which they are selling. Each method should be considered in the light of the characteristics of one's own business and of the possible proportions to which the export side of it may grow.

The five methods range from the comparatively simple task of handling a highly specialized line by mail and the co-operation of Trade Commissioners to the handling of a very wide range of articles all used in the same trade by means of the establishment of wholesale branches of the Canadian house abroad.

Each method has its dangers and difficulties as well as advantages, and each is specially suited to certain general classes of business or types of distribution in export markets. No matter what method is adopted there is little doubt that a personal investigation of overseas markets by a principal or chief executive of the Canadian firm is the best preliminary in the development of successful export business. The initial costs of an investigation of this type may seem high at the time, but in most cases expenditures of this kind have proved to be a successful investment.

METHOD NO. 1

Development of an Export Trade Through Branches in Other Countries, Owned by the Parent Exporting Manufacturer in Canada

(Suitable for companies with a diversified product, most or all of which can find extensive export markets subjected to world-wide competition.)

The manufacturer who is endeavouring to build up an export trade to provide an increased and permanent outlet for his products and not simply looking for a channel through which to dispose of some surplus stock provided for domestic trade or to take up some plant capacity temporarily available should consider carefully the advisability of doing so through his own branches abroad, provided, of course, that his line is of a nature to warrant this consideration.

In contemplating the organization of a branch in a foreign country a great many conditions require to be taken into consideration. The territory should therefore be carefully surveyed to ascertain not only the present demand for his product but the possibility of increase in this demand for the future and how this increase is to come about. The state of the local industry and the competition therefrom, as well as competition from other sources requires to be looked into; also the possibility of securing a sufficient number of dealers of a satisfactory type to handle the lines; the general financial standing of these dealers and their attitude toward meeting obligations when due. Study should also be made of local preferences and prejudices, as it is surprising the influence these have in some parts of the world. Customs Tariffs and the possibility of revisions thereto; location for branch headquarters at a point where there are ample facilities at reasonable cost for the reception and storage of bulk stocks, as well as convenient and adequate transportation service for distribution, also require to be looked into. These, and a number of other matters which will suggest themselves, should be carefully investigated in order to give the question intelligent consideration and arrive at a decision.

If, after investigation, the manufacturer is satisfied that a sufficient demand for his product exists in a certain country and is also satisfied that conditions generally would warrant consideration being given to the establishing of a branch selling organization there, then the advantages and disadvantages of the branch system will require to be carefully weighed.

Marketing through a branch selling organization presents several advantages:

1.—The entire effort of the selling organization is concentrated on the one line and there are therefore no diverting interests as is frequently the case where a jobbing house handles a large range of goods. The manufacturer's products under the branch system cannot at any time be treated as a side line to be ignored when goods returning a greater margin of profit can be sold. Travellers and salesmen are not tempted to follow the line of least resistance as is possible where they have optional lines to offer to a dealer.

2.—If a line is one requiring service of any kind, the manufacturer can ensure his own and his customers' interests being properly cared for by providing a service staff having a thorough and expert knowledge of his goods, and it is recognized that an efficient service, where required, brings increased trade.

3.—A branch selling organization enables a manufacturer to keep more closely in touch with the requirements of the market and therefore be in a position to meet, or even anticipate, changing demands on the part of the purchasing public.

4.—In operating through a branch selling organization, the manufacturer can plan and carry on an advertising and selling campaign best suited to the sale of his lines and is free to take such action as he may consider necessary to meet any unusual conditions which may arise from time to time without having to depend upon or to consider first the interests of the importing jobber.

5.—From the standpoint of financial risk, instead of having one or two large accounts, the manufacturer will have a number of smaller accounts scattered throughout the country. In the opinion of many, a number of smaller accounts is an advantage as, after all, there is something to be said in favour of not putting the eggs all in one basket.

6.—It is reasonable to expect that the expense involved in the operating of a branch selling organization could be met by the additional margin obtained through selling direct to the dealers instead of to a large importing jobber. Even if the Branch could not do better than break even on its operations, the manufacturer would still have the advantage of his manufacturing profit on a larger volume.

7.—An esprit de corps can be developed which is a valuable asset in any selling organization.

There are, of course, some disadvantages, for instance:

1.—During a seasonal slackness or a period of temporary depression, when the demand for the manufacturer's particular product may drop off, the selling organization is handicapped through not having other lines with which to fill in.

2.—The necessity of carrying stocks which, in dealing with a large importing jobber, would very likely have been sold outright. This carrying of stocks also involves the making of provision against obsolescence.

3.—The handling and following up of numerous smaller accounts.

4.—A somewhat increased overhead at headquarters because of the necessity for executive supervision.

There are no doubt other disadvantages, some more applicable to one line than to another; however, the advantages of operating through a branch selling organization would appear to much more than offset the disadvantages, assuming, of course, that the manufacturer's line is sufficiently large and varied, the demand sufficient, and conditions generally favourable to operating in this way.

Except for the Chief Executive and perhaps one or two key men, an overseas branch should be staffed by men who speak the language of the country and who have an intimate knowledge of the country, its requirements, the people and their customs. The Branch Manager, or Chief Executive, should be one who is thoroughly familiar with the Company's products and policies and one who possesses good sound judgment. Located as he usually is, thousands of miles away from headquarters, he is frequently called upon to deal with important problems requiring prompt attention which cannot be conveniently or adequately discussed with his Head Office by telegraph or even by telephone, which is now available.

Several Canadian companies are already operating through branch houses abroad. No doubt any of them would be willing to assist other manufacturers contemplating operating in the same way by supplying whatever information they may have available.

METHOD NO. 2

Development of Export Trade Through Resident Agents or Representatives Visited at Intervals by Executive of Canadian Exporting Manufacturer.

(An excellent method that has worked out successfully in many lines as it provides for gradual growth and expansion, coupled with establishment of close personal relations with representatives and informing travel by export executive and an interchange of visits to the plant by representatives. This should be read in close conjunction with Method No. 3, with which it is closely allied.)

From a sales standpoint there are many advantages in having a resident agent, particularly if it is possible to have him visit the plant, get thoroughly acquainted with the product by closely following up through all stages of manufacture, meet the personnel of the Company, familiarize himself with the method of packing and general handling of export shipments.

A few of these advantages are as follows:

(1) A resident agent can approach customers with more confidence in the product as he is able to converse freely in the language of the country. From personal experience in the Far East and Continent of Europe, have found in many cases difficulty in getting anywhere on account of not being able to speak the language.

(2) A resident agent can keep principals posted on competitive lines and demands for necessary improvements to meet market conditions.

(3) Is in the position to revise and add to mailing lists of already established and prospective customers.

(4) Being in close touch with the financial standing of customers is able to take action on principal's behalf in the event of collection difficulties. In this connection might mention we give our resident agents authority to act on our behalf. If draft is refused, instead of costly cables and delays, it is immediately referred to the resident agent for further instructions.

(5) Is able to transfer shipments in event of disputes. In one or two cases, after shipment had left Canada, it was necessary to hold up on account of credit, which was taken care of by cable and turned over to resident agent for disposal elsewhere.

(6) Is in the position to investigate orders or enquiries which may be received by principals direct.

The advantages of visiting resident agents, as the writer sees them, are many; preferably the President, Vice-President, General Manager, or Sales Manager, as in most cases it is best to make a decision on the spot so to speak. Naturally it is better that this executive should be in close touch with the Export Department.

Visits of this kind bring the line up to date, establish confidence between agents and principals, in addition to getting first hand information as to the class of house from which orders are being received.

Might I repeat again it is very desirable if possible, to have the agent visit the factory. The executive can very often obtain information regarding the sale of competitive lines which the agent does not always seem able to obtain. Manufacturing information can very often be picked up. A general size-up of the agent's ability and his connections can be intelligently made. How often have we sized up a man by correspondence and on making his acquaintance found a totally different person than we had pictured.

In some cases the resident agent is the most economical way of conducting export business, providing, of course, you have a real live agent. There is not any definite rule that I know of to select agents or representatives. I recall one time in Australia, of interviewing a resident agent who was not interested, but later on was approached by the same firm's branch in another city, by one of their Directors who saw possibilities in our line. The firm in question turned out to be live representatives.

There seems to be some element of luck in selecting agents or representatives. In order to avoid liability it might be better to classify as resident representatives not resident agents.

METHOD NO. 3

Development of Export Trade Through Resident Agents Abroad With No Personal Visits by a Representative of the Canadian Exporting Manufacturer.

(A very large number of Canadian manufacturers use this method, gradually moving towards Method No. 2, which supplements and strengthens it.)

The policy of appointing a resident Agent abroad without any personal supervision from a representative is one which is attended with many risks and much dissatisfaction unless preceded beforehand by a very careful investigation into.

- (1) The standing of the individual or Company in the business community.
- (2) His or their financial responsibility.
- (3) Integrity.
- (4) Business capabilities.
- (5) Number and kind of other lines carried.

Too often the manufacturer looking for export business will accept the first application received for an agency arrangement, without making the ordinary investigations which would be made upon receipt of a similar application on the domestic market. Even at the present time applications are constantly being received by exporters from many bright and well-intentioned people who, after seeing or hearing of a new line, think they can sell it against old and established importing agencies who have probably controlled their market on this line for a great many years and who if approached by some obscure individual with a competitive line would give it scant consideration. It is, therefore, vitally necessary that the business standing of an individual or company should be known, in order for your product to receive fair and impartial consideration.

This will also protect the intending exporter from the unscrupulous type of individual who sends in his application under an assumed company name, on very elaborately got up business note paper, with the intention of obtaining a good set of samples for nothing.

What emphasis should be placed on financial responsibility will depend entirely on whether the agent is going to act on a purely commission basis, merely soliciting orders and passing them on to the manufacturer for shipping and financing, or to buy direct himself and in turn resell to the trade.

The integrity of an agent should be unquestionable, because any suspicion of sharp practices would immediately reflect on the company appointing the agent, and result in a definite restriction and loss of trade.

The business capability of the proposed agent should also be scrutinized; there should be a reputation for being thoroughly acquainted with all lines carried, ability to promote sales, judicious in the selection of customers and the granting of credit risks. Much profitable export business can easily be turned into serious and heavy losses unless the latter requirement is carefully followed.

Then it is very essential to know the number and kind of other lines carried, to ascertain if they are in any way complementary or competitive. It may be that the applicant is already carrying too many lines and it has been found in practice that there is a tendency to push only those lines easy to sell, or giving the greatest remuneration. Even if the agent is thoroughly reliable, it is difficult to become thoroughly acquainted with every item carried, with the result that the added new lines may suffer in comparison with the older ones. Often an agent will undertake to carry a competitive line just to prevent some other agent more favourably placed from obtaining it, sending in just sufficient orders to create the impression that an effort is being made to place the line on the market, but at the same time actually throttling its development.

There is no difficulty in obtaining resident agents overseas as an advertisement in any export Journal will bring a host of applicants, the majority of whom will guarantee to handle the line offered in the most efficient manner. The problem to solve is to be able to pick out from the replies received the one who will handle your line most successfully.

A much safer way is to entrust your agent problem to the Canadian Trade Commissioners, seeking their advice after giving them full information about your product.

It is not to be suggested that the right person or company will always be selected and in order to guard against errors of judgment and to protect them as far as possible, it would be advisable to limit the contract of any new agent appointed to one or two years, during which time you will have ample opportunity to check up and study the results obtained. If not satisfactory, the contract can then be broken off at the end of the stipulated period.

From the above it is very obvious that only the best type of individual or company should be chosen as your representative and the success or failure to open up an export market will depend very materially upon this.

The decision to appoint an individual or a company will depend to a great extent on the nature of the commodity to be exported, the distribution desired, and the extent of the market. In some countries it may be advisable to confine your agency to a large company who are in touch with all wholesale outlets, and while this may restrict the distribution, it has this compensation that credit risk is practically reduced to a minimum, and in some cases goods are paid for immediately upon receipt at the usual cash terms. Should it be the policy of the exporter to place his goods through as many outlets as possible, then the individual agent provides the best possible medium because he buys nothing for himself but simply solicits orders for the manufacturer and the greatest advantage lies in the ability of such a man to get business for his principals, from all possible buyers in his field. Another added advantage is that being constantly on the ground, he is able to take immediate advantage of every opportunity the moment it arises, and to adjust troubles and complaints that are almost certain to arise in the conduct of any business, whether it is foreign or domestic. Furthermore, there is bound to arise the question of extended and disputed drafts and he can safeguard payments and collections for his principals.

The agent's duties are not confined only to the securing of orders and some of his time will have to be spent in adjusting difficulties as they arise, also explaining away injudicious letters from the home office, for oftentimes a good connection is lost through a lack of tact and courtesy on the part of the sender.

The chief disadvantage in appointing an agent without personal supervision lies in the almost impossibility of making him or them acquainted with changes in business policy by means of a letter, no matter how well constructed it may be. It is then that close personal contact can explain away in a few minutes any misgivings held, what otherwise may take several letters spread over a considerable period. When export business is being operated at little or no profit it is difficult to explain by letter why an advertising allowance cannot be made or unreasonable claims accepted.

In summing up, it can safely be said that satisfactory business can be obtained by this method, although of course it will always lack that undefinable something which always comes with personal contact.

METHOD NO. 4

The Development of Export Trade Through Export Merchants, Export Buying Houses or Indent Houses.

(This method or really two methods in one, with many similar characteristics, offers a wide field for certain varieties of products but if used solely should be chosen with the utmost discretion. The Indent House Method can fit in by consent with Methods two and three and can be attempted simultaneously.)

Co-operation with reliable indent houses in suitable cases provides a means of training members of manufacturers' staffs in export technique and provides specialized selling and personal contacts in export markets while retaining the identity of manufacturers goods through to the customer.

In the "Export Merchants" discussion prospective exporters would do well to ponder seriously over the disadvantages mentioned.)

There are many manufacturers in Great Britain who have been able to secure a splendid volume of business overseas without ever having had even an export department of their own. They have secured this business through London houses operating as Export Merchants or through London Indent firms.

EXPORT MERCHANTS operate really as Export Wholesale Houses. They make an arrangement with a Manufacturer by which they will have the control of anything he makes that may be shipped overseas. If the Manufacturer receives an enquiry from abroad, he refers it to this Export Merchant. The Merchant buys for cash from the Manufacturer and turns around and quotes the merchandise to firms overseas at a price that will give him a profit. He takes all the credit responsibility and even arranges for proper distribution in any market where there would seem to be a demand for this particular product. He has Representatives who travel to different countries in the world and in this way keeps in touch with his connections abroad.

There are many advantages to the Manufacturer from handling his export business in this manner:

1. It costs him nothing to sell his goods. He may at times find it necessary to supply something in the way of samples but this is likely to be a small matter and if it really amounts to something, he can usually arrange to supply the samples at regular prices, less a sample discount.

2. He sells for cash and has no credit risk. Manufacturers are often concerned and rightly so, about the credit standing of firms overseas who may wish to buy their goods. Selling to the Export Merchant, he gets his money even sooner than for domestic sales.

3. He avoids the necessity of having an export department in his business. The Export Merchant looks after all details of shipping, insurance and invoicing and all the Manufacturer has to do is to ship his goods to Seaboard as directed and submit ordinary domestic invoices. The overseas correspondence is conducted by the Export Merchant, who is competent to look after this even if it be in a foreign language.

4. He increases the volume of business passing through his plant and in this way lowers his unit cost of production. This enables him to compete more successfully in his own market.

The disadvantages of this method are not great. There are one or two features that should be considered:

1. He will probably not know his customers overseas and if for any reason, the Export Merchant breaks his connection, he may lose his overseas business. However, the Export Merchant is not likely to do this so long as he gets good treatment from the Manufacturer. It costs money to develop a market and no one wishes to have to do it with a new product if he already has one established.

2. He will need to make sure that the Export Merchant has a distinct possibility to get business for it has been known to happen that representation of a line has been gotten to keep it off the market. For that reason, it should only be given for an initial period of not too long so that if business does not result, he can take other means to get it.

INDENT FIRMS are really Buying Houses or Purchasing Houses in one country for firms located in other countries overseas. Many overseas firms prefer to have all their business attended to by their own buying offices located in centres of countries where manufacturing industries are plentiful. Such firms as these are often a good means of getting manufactured goods introduced to their overseas clients.

1. They usually buy for first class firms only.
2. They pay cash for all purchases.
3. They attend to all details of shipping, insurance, invoicing and correspondence.

On the other hand:

1. They take no responsibility for sales at all but simply place orders on definite instructions received from their clients.
2. They buy only for their own clients and it may be possible there are other firms in overseas countries who might be interested in the goods. The indent houses will not offer the goods for sale to other than their own clients. Their distribution therefore is limited unless a Manufacturer is dealing with a number of Indent Houses operating in the same overseas markets.

The number of Export Merchants and Indent Firms in Canada has been limited, due probably to the fact that it is only comparatively recently that Canadian Manufactured goods have been shipped in volume and variety to overseas markets. It is only reasonable to expect that their numbers will increase and in this way, there will be offered to Canadian Manufacturers a method of securing export business that is sound, economical and safe.

METHOD NO. 5

Development of Export Trade Direct by Mail.

(This method though useful for highly specialized products marketed to well-rated and substantial customers is fraught with many dangers unless subjected to the closest analysis. It is true it grows gradually to the point of becoming exactly like Method No. 3, but the initial stages of attempting to do business direct by mail, without previous intense and discriminating selection of risks, are full of pitfalls and form a pretext for the propagation of many useless schemes.)

Many Canadian industries, organized primarily to supply their domestic market, do not have the large organization nor the facilities necessary to maintain branches or even direct agents handling only their products in foreign markets.

In these days of specialization, the products of many plants must sometimes be sold in the export markets by commission agents handling kindred lines in order to spread the selling expense over sufficient volume to make export sales profitable. In fact, modern practice has resulted in many plants making only one particular line of goods often of interest only to some one trade or profession. Often this means a field so restricted it does not pay the producer to seek export business through ordinary channels. However, such specialized lines usually have the advantage of being of special interest and usefulness to certain definitely known trades or professions. Lists of prospects for such lines can be obtained and trade solicited in foreign, almost as easily as in the domestic market. It is possible in this way to eliminate expensive selling costs and create a demand for such goods as will permit some responsible agent to stock or supply them profitably.

Of course, wherever this is practical, a selling agent right on the ground is always much better and more satisfactory. A good agent can create connections not obtainable by mail and can always learn why prospects are not interested or correct any misunderstanding which no amount of correspondence might bring out. It is no different in foreign markets than at home. Every purchaser takes the easiest way and will usually pay more to be relieved of all details of which he knows little or nothing.

The local agent has special advantages over direct-by-mail solicitation in countries using other than the English language. A good agent will speak fluently the one or more languages used and can usually translate special instructions into English for the manufacturer, thus overcoming many chances of misinterpretation.

Even if carefully written and checked over, transcriptions from English to other languages are sometimes misleading. Often the correct version does not convey the idea or thought as well as if the letter were written in the dialect peculiar to the country in which the prospect resides.

Particularly in financial matters, the agent can secure reports, approach only good accounts and help with collections when necessary.

But in spite of all these drawbacks it is possible to do a good and profitable export business direct by mail with lines which could in no other way be exported to advantage. Goods of exceptional interest and usefulness to some definitely known trade or profession—possibly not ordinarily obtainable except on special order or which must be delivered in fresh condition. Especially such goods as can be sent by Parcel Post.

The first step is to secure an agent to handle deliveries and lists of interested users. This can usually be done with the aid of the Canadian Trade Commissioner in the market to be tried.

The Commissioner should be given full particulars of the product—samples where possible—and suggestions as to the class of trade likely to be interested. He will suggest an agent and the best source for obtaining lists of prospects. Usually he can secure good lists for the exporter. As an official Canadian representative, the Trade Commissioner often has access to records and information not ordinarily obtainable. In fact, he can usually give better advice and suggestions about the market he represents than could be obtained by months of direct investigation. It is his duty to assist in the sale of any Canadian product in his market. No better corps of expert salesmen could be had at any price than is available to every Canadian exporter.

Having arranged for handling deliveries and secured a list of prospects, a carefully prepared campaign for that particular market should be worked out. Letters should always be in the language of that market. When other than English, such letters should be very carefully translated. If time permits, it is always best to submit the suggested series of letters to the Trade Commissioner for O.K. Translations are often much clearer and get better results if in the particular style or dialect in use in the prospect's country.

Full and complete description—good illustrations, showing the goods and their uses—are essential to best results. Even if it does not pay to translate catalogues or circulars, sufficient explanation should be given in the letters to make their advantages and uses clear to the prospect.

Arrangements with the agent should be made to either stock or obtain goods promptly a demand has been created so as not to lose the benefit of direct solicitation. With the help of the Trade Commissioner, a good agent should be arranged for who will supply the demand. With reasonable prospects the agent can be induced to purchase some stock or if sent on consignment to guarantee payment as the goods are sold. Once the agent is convinced there is a profitable demand he will undertake selling on his own account.

There is no doubt that many Canadian products could be exported in this way if reasonable time and care were given all the necessary details. Export markets are particularly desirable to most Canadian manufacturers to permit increased volume production—not always possible in a comparatively restricted home market. Even if such exports are sold close to actual costs, they are a great advantage in absorbing overhead costs and creating steady employment of sometimes highly trained staffs.

One thing should be kept in mind always—for the good of all Canadian exporters. Once foreign trade has been solicited, be prepared to make prompt deliveries of thoroughly dependable goods offering good value. A manufacturer who solicits foreign business only while his trade is slack in Canada and fails to give good service on foreign business during rush times in domestic trade is creating a very bad opinion in foreign markets, not only of his own concern but on all his fellow exporters as well.

Let every Canadian exporter maintain the good reputation created by our Trade Commissioners and by our most successful exporters by good service, reliable goods and fair dealing.

Financing Export Trade

To any manufacturer who realizes the difficulties of producing an article which fills the requirements of foreign markets, and of securing satisfactory customers for that article against the competition of the other manufacturing countries of the world, the importance given to the subsequent details of the business may seem, at times, a little exaggerated. It is undoubtedly true, however, that close attention to those details of export business which follow the consummation of a sale, are of the greatest importance. The foreign customer not only wants standard quality goods at a competitive price, but also wants those goods delivered to him within contract time, packed in a proper way and accompanied by all the necessary documents properly made out to the last detail; and if the customer does not get what he wants along these lines, he will take his business elsewhere. Documents which do not arrive as soon as the goods, or a missing consular vise or consular invoice, will cause delays and perhaps fines. A description of the goods which may appear entirely reasonable at this end, may not be at all what is required to secure the proper tariff interpretation in the consignee's country. Such incidents are so vexatious to importers that no firm can expect to secure or retain customers unless close attention is paid to the requirements of their market along these lines. For a firm whose personnel does not know these requirements by experience, it is not always a simple matter to obtain the necessary information. The admission of imports is subject to regulation and restriction in many countries at the present time and the release of exchange in payment thereof strictly controlled by local authorities. Exporters entering any new field should familiarize themselves with such regulations before making definite commitments. In the present article, an endeavor is made to indicate the assistance which banks can render in this connection, as well as banking requirements in relation to the handling and financing of foreign shipments.

Extension of Credit by Exporters

Credit is an element in most business transactions. It can be understood that it is even more necessary in foreign than in domestic trade, since more time is usually taken up by the movement of goods between seller and buyer when these two are located in different countries, and Custom House delays are often a factor. The seller who receives a request for the extension of credit in connection with a sale has three things to consider:—(1) The financial standing of his customer; (2) the custom of the foreign market in regard to credit terms on the particular commodity being dealt in and (3) his own ability to finance the business.

The seller's bank can obtain for him a report on the prospective customer's resources and the custom of the market in regard to extension of credit. It should be pointed out here, however, that to obtain complete information by cable is usually a very expensive process, so that every effort should be made to anticipate the need for it before the matter becomes urgent. Again, the quality of the information varies. In countries where Canadian bank branches are located, it is often more complete than when received from correspondents. Sometimes, however, accurate detailed information is impossible to obtain. The banker will always do his best to advise the customer whether, in his opinion, the credit risk is reasonable, but obviously there are cases hard to decide, where the seller's judgment must be the deciding factor. Referring now to the third point mentioned above, the ability of the seller to finance the business, it is obvious that he does not want to tie up his capital in goods in transit, or in 90 days' paper awaiting payment, if he can avoid doing so. He may not be able to avoid doing it in all cases, and a certain proportion of exporters' drafts, therefore, go forward on a collection basis. For the rest, all good exporting houses have arrangements with their banks, whereby they can discount sight or time drafts on good names abroad. The willingness of the bank to enter into such an arrangement naturally depends on the financial standing of their customer, and the amount of credit involved.

Bank Discounts

The negotiation of clean bills is tantamount to making an unsecured loan to the drawers, with the added security of the drawee's name after acceptance.

In discounting both documentary and clean bills, the bank's main security, in the first instance, lies in the responsibility of the drawer. In the case of any trouble with the drawee, the bank is in a weak position unless its power of recourse to the maker is reasonably certain to be productive of satisfactory results. Drawers, therefore, must have a capital adequate to bear the loss which may easily arise from an unfortunate export transaction. The extra risk contained in export business does not lie in the greater lack of probity of foreign houses, but in the room which exists for errors and misunderstandings on account of the distances separating buyer and seller, and the difficulty and expense of conducting a long distance legal action. Misunderstandings are specially liable to arise in the case of transactions effected by correspondence. Litigation is often a lengthy and expensive process; in many cases the results are not worth the outlay.

The risk which underlies the discounting of documentary foreign drafts is not always clearly understood and it is not an uncommon thing for a firm which has been unable to finance an export shipment to criticize its bankers for their refusal to discount drafts covering the merchandise. This firm has probably been told, quite truly, that exporting involves the granting of credit. It now gets a profitable and relatively large order from a foreign house on whom good reports have been received. The terms may be sight, thirty or sixty days—quite moderate credit—yet the bank may be unwilling to discount the seller's documentary drafts. The Canadian firm cannot understand the refusal since, in its opinion, the bank is fully covered by the merchandise until acceptance, and, in the case of sight drafts, until payment. The answer is this: that this security of merchandise is often more apparent than real: that many causes for refusal of delivery may crop up, and the goods may then be a thousand miles from a good market, and unsaleable except at a sacrifice. The principal backing is then the capital of the drawer. Where this warrants the extension of the credit involved, the draft will be discounted. Firms of the class that we have referred to were probably of moderate capital, though of good standing. Their domestic business used up their resources to the hilt; and an unsuccessful excursion into the export field for other than a moderate amount might have brought them into a bad position and left a slow loan on the hands of the bank which thought it was discounting a self-liquidating bill.

Currency of Bills

The currency in which a draft is drawn depends on the arrangements made by seller and buyer at the time the sale is effected; and these arrangements will vary according to the country in which the one and the other are located. The object of the drawer of a draft is to secure a certain and definite return from it. He can best do this by drawing in terms of his own money, thus shifting the risk of loss from exchange fluctuations on to the shoulders of the drawee; or, if the drawer's currency is not quoted and dealt in to any great extent in the country of the drawee, the former can make his drafts payable in some stable and well-known currency. Sterling was, par excellence, the money of international trade prior to the war, since it was quoted and dealt in all the world over, and a sterling remittance always could be turned into gold on the London market.

At one time Canadian exporters made great use of United States dollars as a basis for submitting prices to foreign buyers, and as the currency in which their drafts were made payable. The practice is not so much in vogue at the present time. There is only one sound reason for dealing in this way, viz., the fact that in some countries quotations for Canadian dollars are not received as frequently as those for United States exchange. At such points the importer who goes to the bank to take up a draft is liable to get a more accurate and favourable rate if the draft is payable in United States dollars than if settlement is called for in Canadian dollars. The fact that Canadian quotations are not received as frequently as United States quotations, cannot always be avoided. Unless Canada is regularly doing a good volume of business with the country concerned, it does not pay the banks at that point to go to the expense of receiving frequent exchange quotations by cable.

It is not always possible to draw in the currency of the seller's country, since some importers prefer to make payment in their own money. If this money is not exchangeable for gold, and is subject to violent fluctuations in its exchange relations with the currencies of other countries, an importer will find it difficult to make purchases on this basis. If, however, the money of his country is moderately stable, competition may tend to force exporters to draw as the importer desires.

Before the war, drafts on Great Britain, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and the British colonies using sterling currency were drawn in sterling, and the same is largely true today, although for exports to these points from the United States, dollars may be used, or dollar Letters of Credit established. Drafts on the countries of South and Central America are rarely, if ever, phrased in terms of the local currency of these countries, and sterling and dollar drafts predominate. The same is true as regards the Orient.

Drafts on the main European countries were in many cases drawn in francs, marks, crowns, pesetas or whatever the currency might be; today this is not so, except insofar as some of the countries which have returned to the gold standard are concerned. Thus, a substantial international business is done in Dutch guilders, and Swiss francs and Swedish crowns are also used. So far, it is not usual for drafts on Germany to be phrased in terms of the new German mark. In all cases, however, our remarks on the wide use of sterling and dollars are more or less applicable.

Exchange Clauses

The fact that a bill is not payable in the currency of the drawee's country at once gives rise to the question of how the conversion rate between the two currencies shall be established. If this were considered a matter for arrangement between the collecting bank and the drawee, it is not difficult to imagine the complications which might arise. Would a bill for $1,000 United States currency drawn on a firm in Buenos Aires, Argentina, be settled for by the drawee paying to the bank an amount of local paper currency which, at par, would equal $1,000 U.S. or would the drawee perhaps consider settlement made by the tender of a sight draft on New York for the face amount of the bill—a settlement which would involve a loss to the drawer, if he had expected to be paid by cable? All these and other possible points of issue, are settled by the addition of a clause to the draft indicating the basis on which settlement shall be effected. The usual clauses for dollar and sterling drafts on foreign countries read respectively as follows:—

Dollar Drafts on Foreign Countries

Payable at the bank's selling rate on day of payment for sight drafts on (Canadian dollars—Montreal, U.S. dollars—New York).

Sterling Drafts on Foreign Countries

Payable at the bank's selling rate on day of payment for sight drafts on London.

Drafts drawn at ninety days' sight on South American points are not uncommon. In the case of such drafts, the drawer will have to realize that he is to lose interest, not only during the transit period of the draft and return remittance, but also during the time occupied by the draft in arriving at maturity. Thus he will have to include in his quotation interest at the prevailing rate made up as follows:—

Transit to and from Argentina and delays.....	45 days
Elapsed time to maturity date of draft.....	90 days
	<hr/> 135 days

Some drawees are slow about accepting drafts. Therefore, only experience can show exactly what loss of time should be allowed for in such transactions.

It is advisable to include bank commission and other charges in the face amount, if the drawer expects to recover the amount of his invoice in full without deduction.

There are special customs in connection with the collection or negotiation through London of bills drawn on Australia, New Zealand, Africa and the Orient; the details are somewhat too long to be included in an article of this nature, but they may be found in the booklet "Financing Foreign Trade", published by the Royal Bank of Canada.

Instructions to Banks

Exporters, when placing bills with a bank, either for discount or for collection, should be careful to give the bank full instructions in regard to the handling of the drafts in question. Instructions as to whether documents should be surrendered against payment or against acceptance, are so obvious that it is only by some clerical error that they are ever omitted, but there are numerous other points which are frequently not covered when bills are placed with a bank:—the omission sometimes leads to unnecessary trouble and expense. Example of what such instructions may consist of is given below:

Protest for Non-Payment

Letters of Credit

A considerable volume of international business is financed by means of bankers' credits. When exporters can manage to have customers open such credits, this is obviously a very desirable way of doing business, because risk of loss and any trouble regarding financing are eliminated. While buyers have to pay the bank at their end a moderate commission for this facility, the extra expense is often compensated for by the more favorable quotations they can secure from sellers if payment is effected in this manner.

When Canadian exporting firms have credits opened in their favour, it will pay them to discuss with their bankers the sense and terms of these documents, if they are in any doubt regarding the provisions embodied therein, or the protection afforded. For example, the credit may be issued by a foreign bank, with whose standing they are not familiar. The Canadian bank can advise them whether the foreign bank in question is entirely responsible. Again, the credit may have a revocable provision which needs to be carefully considered. It is not possible to discuss here the varied aspects of this class of banking document, but it may be said that great care has to be exercised by an exporter to live up meticulously to all the requirements of a credit. Some of these may seem to him absurd and unnecessary, but he must remember that the bank at this end has no authority to vary the instructions in any way, shape or form. If they require alteration, the matter should be taken up as soon as advice of the credit is received, instead of waiting until the shipment has been loaded on board steamer and the documents brought to the bank.

No reference has been made in this article to shipping documents, although these are important from a banking point of view when drafts are received from clients, either for collection, or for discount or under terms of Letters of Credit. In the first case, the bank needs proper documents in order to render the client good service; in the second and third cases, it needs them for its own protection. This section of the subject is dealt with in the Royal Bank of Canada booklet which has previously been referred to, viz., "Financing Foreign Trade."

Definitions of Technical Abbreviations used in Foreign Trade and Exchange Transactions.

The following list includes some of the principal abbreviations used in ocean shipping, transportation, marine insurance, and foreign exchange, as well as a number referring to standards, gauges, threads, dimensions, electrical and engineering terms. It was compiled with the assistance of our members, marine insurance companies, banks and departments of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. It is hoped it will be useful both to Canadian exporters and importers of Canadian products abroad.

Explanation of List

THE list beginning on the opposite page comprises the names and addresses, alphabetically arranged, of all firms appearing in the classified section of the Canadian Trade Index. In this list we have tried to give the users of the book some information that will be useful in getting into quick touch with the makers of any desired article.

No street addresses are given in Part III (the classified article section). These are recorded where necessary to complete the address in Part II (the alphabetical list).

We have not attempted to give, in this list, any full account of the products. These will all be found under separate headings in the classified section on pages 307 and following. Only where the firm or company name does not indicate the line of goods manufactured have we mentioned some of the articles produced.

The address given is that of the main place of business in Canada, usually the head office, although it may be both factory and office address. The addresses given later, under "Factories," are those of branch factories. Where branch offices in Canada are mentioned stock is generally carried at these points.

For. Rep. or simply Rep. means foreign or other representative for export sales purposes.

The Cable addresses and codes will be found useful in initiating and transacting export business.

Guide to Classified Index

THE method of indexing the material on the succeeding pages is that by which the most important word in headings is generally placed first. The arrangement then proceeds in the proper alphabetical order. In the majority of cases it will be found that the noun or main name comes first, i.e.—Furniture, bedroom; Hardware, builders; Leather, boot and shoe upper, etc. This allows the grouping of all similar articles close together. In other cases, where the inversion seems unnatural, the headings have been listed as they run—air appliances; fire escapes, etc. If any difficulty is experienced in locating desired headings or articles, users of the book should try both forms of listing. This will enable the heading to be found if it appears in the book at all.

In all cases we have endeavored to use the names most commonly known. It is possible that we have listed some products and materials under names that differ from those that our subscribers use. Synonyms will therefore be useful to bear in mind.

Cross references have been supplied where two or more names are commonly used to describe the same article.

Street addresses of the firms listed in the classified section are provided where necessary in the alphabetical list of names (on blue sheets) immediately preceding the Classified Section (Part III, pages 307 to 683).

Attention is also called to the French Index of articles, which is placed immediately after the Produce Section (Part IV, pages 685 to 692). In a limited edition a Spanish Index also appears following the French Index.

Firms before whose name an asterisk appears are engaged or seriously interested in Export Trade.

We shall be glad to have the opportunity of giving additional information to any manufacturer or user of the Canadian Trade Index. No charge is made for this service.
